ARSON AT MANCHULI

ANOTHER C.E.R. CLUB GUTTED

NO ARRESTS MADE

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Telegrams Ordinance, 1921. Received May 17, 10 a.m.)

Harbin, May 18.
The Chinese Eastern Railway employees' club at Manchuli was burned down yesterday.

The premises were completely gutted and the loss is estimated at 120,000 roubles.

This is the second large C.E.R. club to be burned down in a fortnight. The other was at the extreme of the railway, at Sulfonho. On that occasion arson was merely suspected.

There is no doubt whatever that yesterday's blaze at Manchuli was the result of deliberate arson, but no arrests have been made.—Reuter.

EXPLOSION IN COAL MINE

THREE KILLED AND MANY GASED

London, May 17.
A serious explosion occurred today at the West Cambeck Colliery, one of the most famous in England, near Hednesford, Stafford.

Over a hundred men were in the pit at the time of the disaster and three of the miners lost their lives.

Many of the remainder were suffering from gas when they were brought to the surface by rescue parties, who did magnificent work.—British Wireless.

CHEAPER PETROL AT HOME

A BIG REDUCTION ANNOUNCED

London, May 16.
A reduction of twopenny-halfpenny a gallon in the price of petrol in England takes effect as from to-morrow.

Oil shares on the Stock Exchange all experienced a fall, Burmahs dropping more than 4/- a share.—British Wireless.

MANCHUKUO AND KALGAN

CHINESE SCOFF AT TOKYO REPORT

Peking, May 18.
Chinese officials in Peking scoff openly at the Japanese reports that Kalgan, where Fong Yu-hsiang is staying, has announced its adherence to Manchukuo.—Reuter.

TIENTSIN FEARS

RAPID JAPANESE ADVANCE

CHINESE FALL BACK

Peking, May 18.
All Chinese troops have now evacuated Tangshan and are rapidly withdrawing to the west.

Three Japanese aeroplanes followed in the wake of the retreating forces, harassing them continuously with heavy aerial bombardments.

Concern is growing in the Tientsin area. The situation is growing increasingly tense owing to internal feeling, while some apprehension is felt of possibly serious developments upon the falling back of large bodies of defeated troops.

FENGYUN CAPTURED.

The Japanese have now occupied Fengyun near Tangshan. Sung Che-yuan's troops, after a stubborn resistance for several days, have now withdrawn from Lungchingwan and Santunying, inside Hsifongkou.

It is hoped that General Huang Fu will be able to devise a plan for halting the Japanese advance.—Reuter.

VOLUNTARY RETREAT.

Peking, May 18.
The Chinese withdrawal from Tangshan was carried out voluntarily, according to Chinese despatches, the object being to avoid serious disturbance of the area, where large British interests are centred.

The last Chinese soldier left Tangshan at noon yesterday.

In fighting round Fengyun, now occupied by the Japanese, General Gong Chao-yuan's forces suffered four hundred casualties yesterday. The Japanese also suffered heavy losses in street fighting.—Special.

DISCONTINUATION OF TREATY

ANGLO-JAPANESE TRADE STRUGGLE

London, May 16.

Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, announced in the House of Commons to-day that twelve months' notice for the termination of the Anglo-Japanese treaty in British West Africa was being given forthwith.

This decision is the outcome of the serious Japanese competition with British goods.—Reuter.

FINLAND FAIL TO WIN A MATCH

EASY FOR BRITAIN IN DAVIS CUP TIE

London, May 16.

Britain easily won the two remaining singles in the Davis Cup tie against Finland at Queen's Club to-day, neither Austin nor Perry conceding a set.

Perry beat Grabin 6-1, 6-2, 6-4; Austin beat Grotenfels 6-0, 6-1, 6-4.

Britain thus won by five matches to love.—Reuter.

HERR HITLER'S SPEECH

FIRM INSISTENCE ON EQUALITY

Berlin, May 18.
It is learned that Herr Hitler, in his statement to the Reichstag to-day, will emphasise Germany's equality claim, while expressing a desire for peace and readiness to compromise on disarmament consistently with Germany's position and honour as a first-class Power.

The speech, it is understood, will not contain any startling declaration. It will probably be very conciliatory, but very unyielding.

Herr Hitler will insist upon the Germany claim to equality in all matters.—Reuter.

CHARTERED BANK'S LOSS

FORMER H.K. MANAGER PASSES AWAY

OCTOGENARIAN'S CAREER

London, May 16.
The death is announced, at the age of 82, of Mr. Thomas Henderson Whitehead, a former Hongkong bank manager.

Mr. Whitehead, began his business career on the staff of the Chartered Bank of India in London in 1873. He started on foreign service eleven years later and between 1874 and 1902 was stationed in India, Ceylon, Singapore, Saigon, Haiphong, Hongkong, Manila, China, Japan, Canada, Mexico and America.

He was appointed manager of the Hongkong office of the Chartered Bank in 1883, and was in addition Superintendent of the Far Eastern branches from 1893. He was appointed London manager in 1902.

POLITICAL INTERESTS.

Widely travelled, Mr. Whitehead four times encircled the world, and on arrival at St. Petersburg from Vladivostok in 1900, was interviewed by the Foreign Minister at his request.

The late Mr. Whitehead was prominently identified with political affairs in the Far East and on October 24 and 25, 1895 despatched the historic telegram to the Times regarding Russia's secret arrangement with China for the occupation of Port Arthur, Manchuria.

He was a member of a special mission in 1900 to interview the late Mr. Pierpont Morgan, President William McKinley, President (Continued on Page 7.)

BRITAIN'S WARM RECEPTION

"THIS IS ALMOST AN HISTORIC DAY"

MEANING OF THE STATEMENT

LONDON, MAY 17.

"THIS IS ALMOST AN HISTORIC DAY. AMERICA HAS BOLDLY AND OPENLY CUT HER MOORINGS AND LAUNCHED HERSELF IN FULL SAIL WITH COURAGE AND FINE DETERMINATION INTO NEW WATERS."

This was the Prime Minister's happily-phrased interpretation of President Roosevelt's world appeal and statement of policy. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald was addressing the Pilgrim's Club dinner in London to-night.

"Henceforth," he said, "America, by her own declaration cannot be indifferent to anything that concerns the peace of the world."

WORLDWIDE NON-AGGRESSION PACT

London, May 17.

When President Roosevelt had addressed to the rulers of all countries participating in the Disarmament or Economic Conference, a Foreign office spokesman said that although the hour of arrival precludes an official British comment to-night, no doubt can exist that the spirit of the statement will meet with the warmest approval in this country, and that the proposals will be studied with a genuine desire to co-operate effectively in obtaining the fulfilment of the President's hope "that peace may be assured through practical measures of disarmament and that all of us may carry to victory our common struggle against economic chaos."

QUICK ACTION.

In his message, the President points out that nations have, for this purpose, called two great world conferences and upon the decisions reached, the future of the whole world depends.

"The Economic Conference will meet soon and must come to its conclusions quickly. The world cannot await deliberations long delayed."

"The Conference must establish order in the place of the present chaos by the stabilization of currencies, by freeing the flow of world trade and by international action to raise the price levels."

"It must, in short, supplement individual domestic programmes for economic recovery by wise and considered international action."

CONFUSED PURPOSES.

As for the Disarmament Conference, the President says that confused purposes still clash dangerously, and a duty lies in bringing practical results through concerted action.

"I believe that an overwhelming majority of people feel obliged to retain excessive armaments because they fear some act of aggression against them and not because they themselves seek to be aggressors. There is a justification for this fear. Modern weapons of offence are vastly stronger than modern weapons of defence."

THREE STEPS.

"If all nations will agree wholly to eliminate both the possession and the use of the weapons which make possible successful attack, defences automatically will become impregnable and the defence of every nation will become secure."

"There are three steps to be agreed upon in the present discussion."

"The first is to take at once the first definite step towards this objective, as broadly outlined in the

CHINA AND SOVIET

NON-AGGRESSION PACT OFFER

AN IMPORTANT CLAUSE

Moscow, May 17.

An unusual Article which, if signed, will hinder the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway and the maintenance of official relations with Manchukuo, is included in the proposed terms of the Non-Aggression Pact handed by the Chinese Foreign Ministry at Nanking to M. Bogomoloff and forwarded by him to Moscow.

The Article provides for "refusal of any recognition of de jure or de facto situations created by aggression on the part of a third Power."

Macdonald Plan.

The second is to agree upon the time and the procedure for taking the following steps.

The third is to agree that while the first and following steps are being taken, no nation shall increase its existing armaments over and above the limitations of treaty obligations.

AND A FOURTH.

"But the peace of the world must be assured during the whole period of disarmament and I therefore propose a fourth step, concurrent with and wholly dependent on the fulfilment of these three proposals, and subject to existing treaty rights, namely, that all the nations of world should enter into a solemn and definite pact of non-aggression, that they should re-affirm the obligations they have assumed to limit and reduce their armaments, and, provided these obligations are faithfully executed by all the signatory powers, individually agree that they will send no armed forces of whatever a nature across their frontiers."

POLICY INTO ACTION.

The President adds that if any strong nation refuses to join with genuine sincerity in these concerted efforts for political and economic peace, the civilized world will know where the responsibility for failure lies.

He urges all nations to translate their professed policies into action.—British Wireless.

SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

President Explains His Policy

Washington, May 16.

President Roosevelt followed his world-wide appeal for disarmament, coupled with an undertaking to enter into a Consultative Pact, by a special Message to Congress. He advised Congress that he had proposed a World Non-Aggression Pact.—Continued on Page 7.

ROOSEVELT AND CHINA

INTERPRETATION OF NEW POLICY

RESTRICTION ON TROOPS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(The Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Telegrams Ordinance, 1921. Received May 18, 10 a.m.)

Washington, May 17.
America's position in China as a consequence of President Roosevelt's dramatic revision of foreign policy is being discussed here.

It is indicated in official quarters that the United States Government is fully aware that the President's sweeping declaration will be interpreted as applying to the United States' own foreign policy.

The proposal that no armed forces shall be sent across the frontier except where arms limitation agreements are violated has stirred up much discussion. It is pointed out that the re-entry of United States Marines into Haiti after withdrawal would apparently constitute a direct crossing of a frontier by troops.

CHINA SITUATION.

The presence of United States soldiers and marines in China are defined by treaty, it is indicated in official quarters that they would not fall within the prohibition suggested by President Roosevelt.

But the question would immediately arise if American units undertook in any way to enlarge the territory they hold as the Japanese did at the beginning of the present warfare.—Reuter.

PRINCE AND HIS NEW PLANE

USES IT FOR FIRST LONG FLIGHT

London, May 16.
The Prince of Wales to-day flew from Windsor to Cardiff to hold an investiture of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

It was the first occasion he had made a long flight in his new Vickers Vimy machine.

The monoplane has accommodated for ten persons, and has a speed of 160 miles an hour. Sound-proof walls make conversation possible at normal tones and ten parachutes in the cabin roof are released for passengers on touching a button.

The Prince flew back to London to-night to keep a second public engagement.—British Wireless.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Books are Real Helps to Mothers.

By Olive Roberts Barton

They say that motherhood is a profession. I'll say it is. A mother must be everything from a doctor to a psychiatrist, as well as a good dietician, steward and even electrician and plumber. She is father-confessor, judge, jury and hangman, healer and yogi.

What price mother!

Now she is reading. And thank heaven the public doesn't whisper about her if she brings up her baby by book. I used to have to hide mine. What Dr. Holt or any of his colleagues had to say about regular feeding and modified milk I had to keep a secret between myself and the covers of the books I read.

To-day mothers can come right out in the open, book in hand. It is quite the thing to say, "Dr. Richardson says this," or "Dr. Bartlett says that," or "Dr. Fish-bell tells us to do so and so." Quite human to hunt up O'Shea, Sayles or Langdon; or other authors on child health and child understanding. I wonder sometimes if the young mother of to-day realizes that she lives in a truly golden age.

An Aid to Home Nursing

She not only has the advantage of what professional knowledge she seeks in books, but the added advantage of liberty as far as public opinion is concerned, to avail herself freely of what she can find.

A day or so ago a clerk handed me still another book which must be of decided help to mothers. It seems to fill a certain gap left out of most health books on children. Doctors can tell us to do certain things but they cannot say "how" because they aren't able to give a whole course in home nursing. This is a field of its own.

This book, "Amateur Nurse," written by Mary Wright Wheeler, tells us how to go about doing things in a sick room for any member of the family, young or old.

I believe that every mother with a family would not only be helped but relieved to have something to turn to besides herself when she has to nurse some member of her family. I always keep handy my book on first-aid.

Preparedness for Illness

Speaking of nursing reminds me: the one thing we do not prepare for is illness. We see that we have supplies for the kitchen, laundry, bed-rooms, the whole house. Then when illness comes along, perhaps in the middle of the night, we have to get the simplest of sick-room paraphernalia.

The wise mother will keep on hand those articles or simple remedies that will not deteriorate with time. Enamel and glass-ware will not deteriorate. Rubber goods will stand up much longer than they used to. But even so, hot-water bottles, ice-caps and so on are excellent things for emergencies.

It is merely a suggestion, but it seems logical, does it not? The one thing we are not prepared for usually is sickness. There are people who regard such preparation in much the same light as pacifists regard an army. "Get it ready and trouble comes!" they say. I don't believe that same preparation ever causes trouble. At any rate it is sheer improvidence not to provide for sickness.

FASHION HINTS.

Blouses for Spring.

The blouses that go with your new spring suit can make the entire outfit serve many occasions. Have a blouse of lame or other formal material and when the coat is removed the dressy blouse and skirt can well go to tea or even dinner. Silk blouses of less formal varieties make it an ideal street costume.

To Keep Your Hat on

The way to keep a shallow crowned hat on your head in spite of vagrant spring breezes is to tie a bandana handkerchief tightly around your head and then jam the hat on over it.

WHITE COLLAR CLASS

Toby Wing

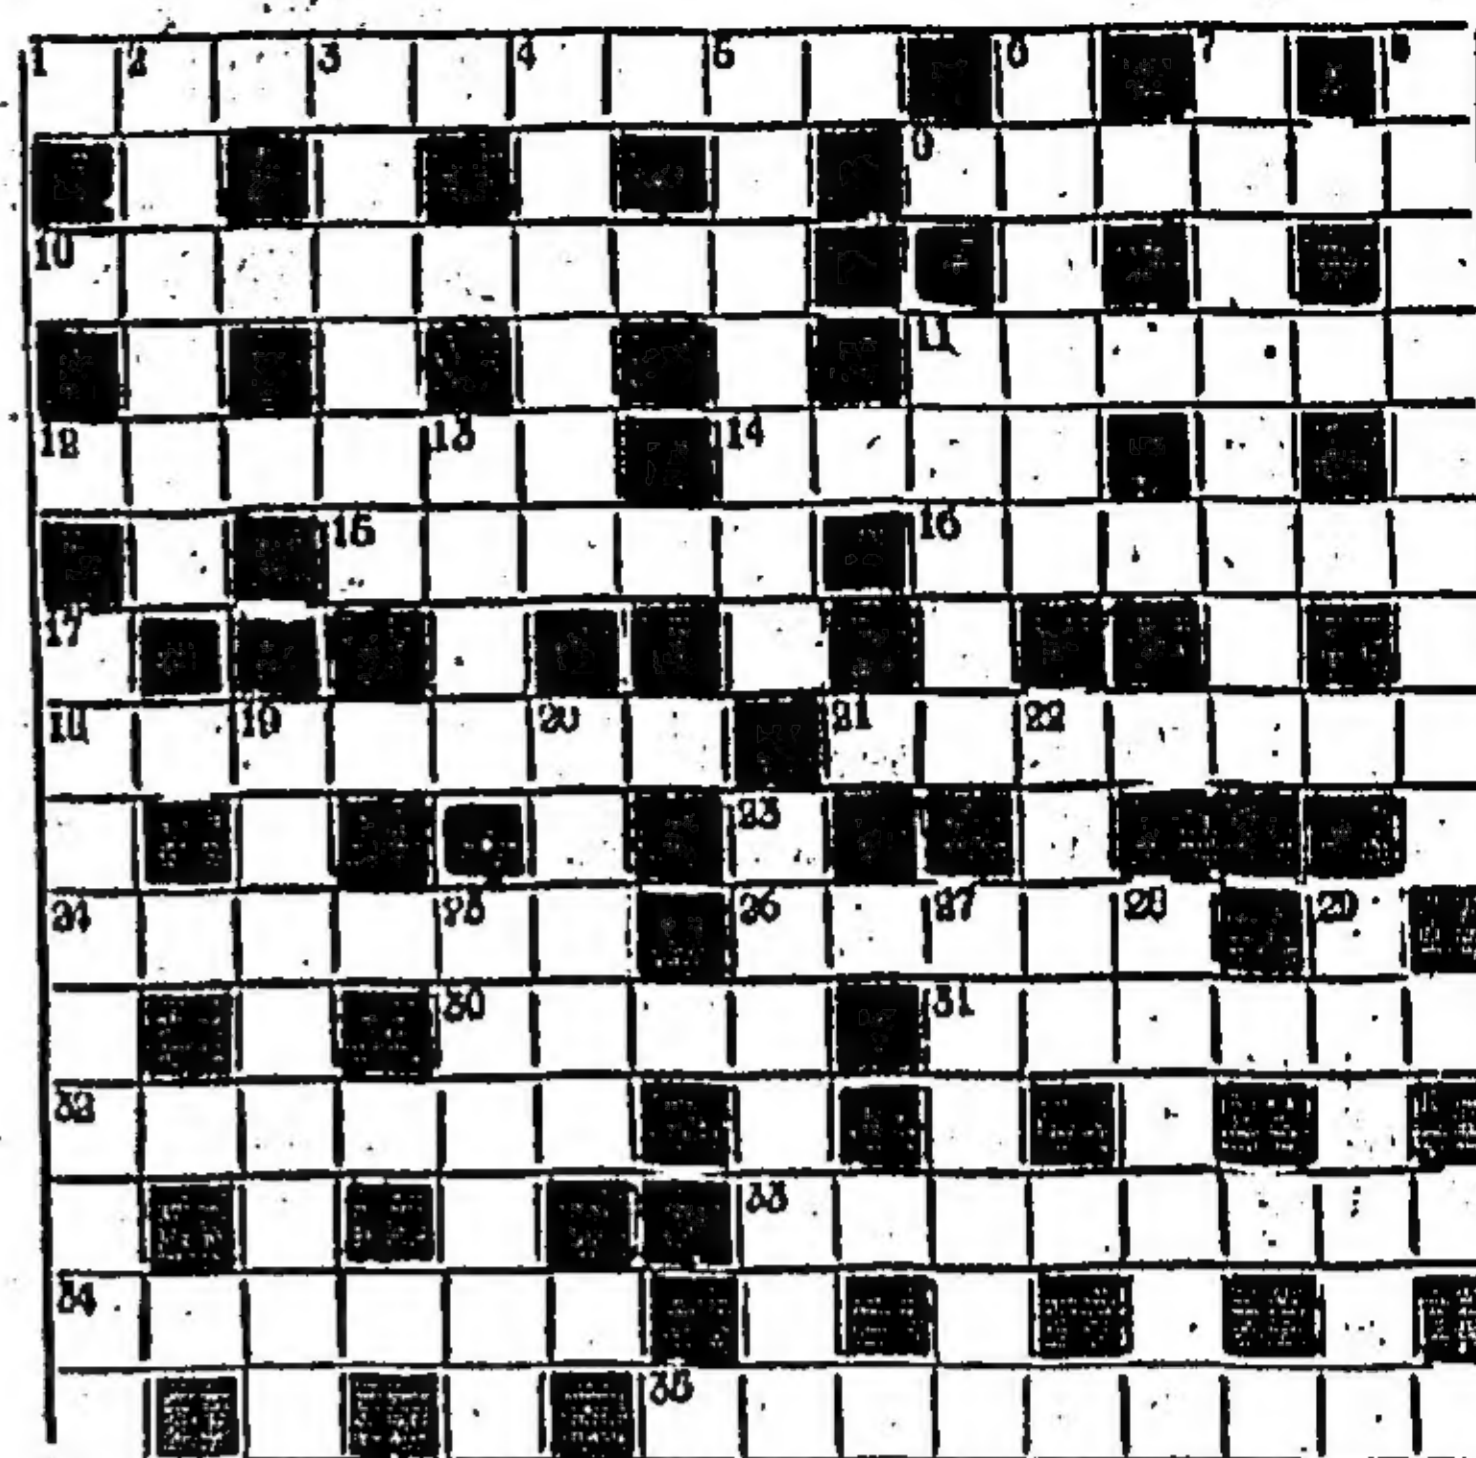

Hollywood.—Demure collars are giving Hollywood girls individuality in their spring dresses.

Toby Wing wears a lovely shawl collar on a black crepe dress that is exquisitely tucked in scallops and then embroidered to boot. It stands up around her neck, a little bit like an old-fashioned ruff, and gives her face a flattering frame.

Elissa Landi, wore a black crepe de chine dress with a triple-decked white pique collar and matching cuffs. She also wore a knitted fez of fine white wool at least six inches high.

Claudette Colbert has several dark dresses with hand-embroidered white organdie collars. The prettiest one she has is an afternoon dress of black crepe with a wattleau neck and a little glimpse of hand-flowered white organdie and little puff sleeves of the same organdie embroidery.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XXXI

Three days later Mona faced Mr. Garretson in the Townsend library, that room she loved so deeply. The sun, pouring in through the stained glass windows, touched the slender, black-garbed figure. Mona's hands, restless and nervous, clutched a fine linen handkerchief spasmodically.

The funeral for John Barnard Townsend was over. Rich and poor alike had crowded into the church to pay their last respects. Elizabeth was there with her husband and the eldest of the children. Mrs. Faxon, Mr. Garretson, Mr. Amesbury and Mr. Lawton from the office, Mona's family. In a side pew were the servants, looking grief-stricken. John Townsend had been a good man, a good employer.

He had contributed to a dozen different charities, sponsored a dozen movements for the good of mankind. But, with all his generosity, he had ignored the rights of his nephew.

Mona knew that he had meant to set all that straight. He had offered to do so to please her but she half-suspected this grudging assent was a cloak to hide gentleness he did not like to show.

Now it was too late! "It seems horrible to talk about money now," Mona said to the lawyer, "but you must believe me, Mr. Garretson. My husband meant to leave that money to Barry. He told me so. It was his own suggestion. We were both to think things over."

She flushed a trifle, then went

on. "The truth of the matter is, my husband agreed that if I would forget the divorce arrangement he would do the right thing by Barry."

"The lawyer nodded. He was thinking he had never seen anyone look so pitifully young, so tragic and desperate. "Did he explain to you what the right thing might be?"

"The right thing?" Mona stared at the man who, hands clasped behind him, was pacing the floor, pausing now and then to straighten the rug with a well-groomed foot.

"Yes, the right thing." "Why, I don't know. Sign papers, I suppose, so that Barry can have his money."

Mr. Garretson looked at her strangely. "What money, Mona?"

"Why, his own money!"

The man's eyes narrowed. "You mean you believe that Towny was keeping young Barry's own money from him?" His tone incredulous.

Neither observed that he had relapsed into the friendly diminutive by which John Townsend was known among his closest friends. But its use meant one thing. Mr. Garretson was on the defensive.

Mona faltered. "Something like that. It was talked of at the office, you know. Barry used to come there to get money. I knew everybody knew—that he came north to arrange for money to use in buying mining machinery."

"For a worked-out old diamond mine," Mr. Garretson expostulated.

Mona shook her head. "Not worked-out at all. The Empress came from that mine."

"The Empress?" Mr. Garretson gazed at her without understanding.

"That huge diamond. John bought it for me."

At this Mr. Garretson laughed abruptly. "Remember," he nodded. "But let me tell you about Barry's money, as you term it. Under the terms of his father's will Barry's money, what there was of it, was placed in trust. He can touch it only when he is 30. Until that time it remains with his uncle. Or with us. When Barry Townsend came to the office he was merely asking for an advance on what we considered a fair allowance, particularly in view of the fact that he was acting against his uncle's wishes and his own father's wishes by continuing his residence in South America."

There was a pause.

"But Barry's father worked the mine."

"Granted. But that was different. He amused himself with the mine as, well, let us say, an avocation. He had other more profitable interests. He would have been very much opposed to Barry's sinking all his fortune in that mine as he seems bent upon doing."

Mona considered. "Won't you explain to me then just what John could have done to help Barry?"

For answer the lawyer motioned Mona to a chair and sank into the one by the fire.

"Almost anything. Townsend was a very rich man. Few people guessed exactly how rich. He could have signed over half of his fortune or all of it to Barry. But as for Barry's own money, which will be his when he is 30, your husband had no more power over that than I have at this moment. In fact, precisely the same power. I cannot allow Barry, by law, to touch it. He has his allowance. He has always had his allowance and that is that!"

Mona was so stunned that she could not speak for a moment. "But John—John agreed! What did he mean to do when he said he would do the right thing by Barry?"

"That is what I would like to impress upon you. John Townsend agreed, on your behalf, to make Barry Townsend partial heir to his own fortune. This was, of course, not Barry's own at all. He was going to settle $10,000,000 on Barry because he thought it would please you. But this was his own money—not Barry's. Rather more than right by Barry, don't you think?"

Mona's anxious face cleared happily. "Then everything is all right?" she asked.

"Townsend drew the will. Or rather I drew it."

"He expected me to agree!"

Mona exclaimed. "He expected nothing of you except that you should be happy. He ordered a new will drawn simply to please you. If you preferred to be poorer by $10,000,000 after his death he was agreeable."

Mona spread her hands and laughed. "I who have never had $10 before that I could spend without feeling guilty! What are $10,000,000 more or less? Then Barry has his money!"

Mr. Garretson scowled. "Unfortunately, no. Barry does not have the money. Townsend did not sign the will."

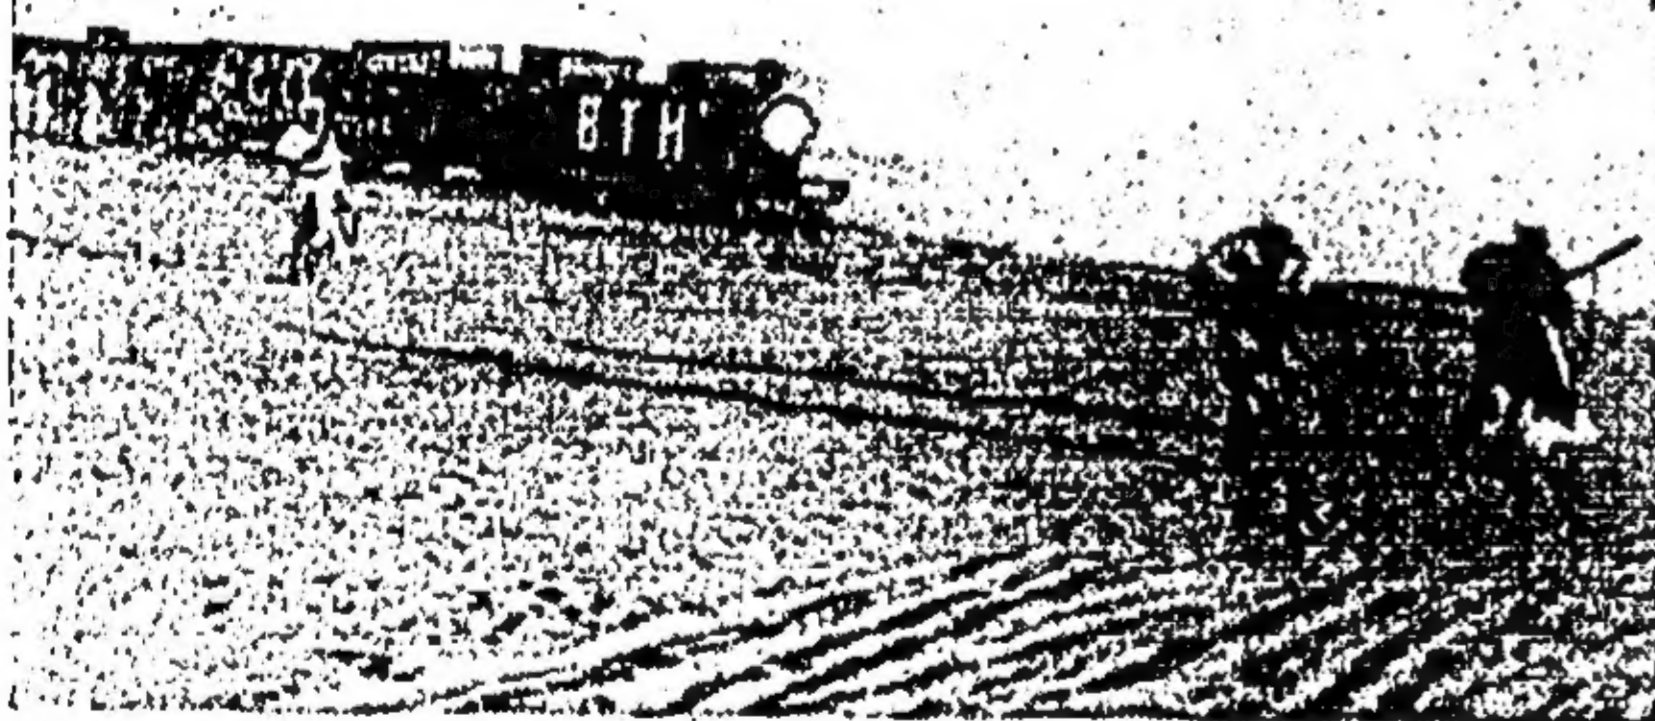

"But—" Mona started. "He wanted it that way!"

The lawyer's voice was dryness itself. "The courts prefer signatures in such cases." His tone became mild again. "My child, matters are as they were. Elizabeth—"

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET
FIRM

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done, 3,200,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—President Roosevelt's world-wide message inspired confidence and caused stocks to advance from one to five points. Several groups, including sugar and packing issues and so-called "wet" stocks, besides several other specialties made spectacular gains. American Tel. & Tel. and similar stocks were impressively strong and indicated a return of strong investment buying. Shorts in American Tel. & Tel. covered, expecting full dividend to be declared tomorrow.

A NORWEGIAN TRIUMPH

This may seem the wrong heading for the recital of the circumstances of a judgment in favour of Denmark and against Norway by the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague. It is, however, deliberately chosen, because the outstanding significance of the case recently decided is the temper in which it has been conducted by the opposing Governments, and naturally the greater credit is due to the defeated party who, in spite of bitter disappointment at the result, accepts the umpire's verdict loyally. This, in our English phrase, is cricket. It is not necessary to follow all the details of the arguments used on either side. It is enough to say that this is the first case in which the Permanent Court has had to adjudicate upon a question of sovereign rights to territory. Two principles of International Law were in conflict. Denmark claimed the whole of Greenland on the basis of ancient treaty and modern agreement. Norway invoked the doctrine of "res nullius." Some of her fishermen had formed rough settlements upon an unoccupied part of the bleak coast line, and finally her Government claimed the right to fly the Norwegian flag and arrange for the administration of justice along this part of East Greenland. Feelings began to run high in both countries, but very wisely and properly their Governments decided to have the dispute settled for them by the impartial judgment of the World Court, which the League of Nations had established. By twelve votes to two the Court rejected the submissions of Norway and accepted those of Denmark. Without hesitation or delay M. Mowinkel, the Prime Minister of Norway, expressed the readiness of his country to abide by the decision so adverse to its hopes. Even more remarkable perhaps was the prompt exchange of telegrams between the Kings of Norway and Denmark, the one congratulating the other condoling with, his brother—both determined that, in spite of their differences, the existing good relations between their respective countries should be strengthened rather than diminished. The moral of the whole affair is so obvious that it hardly needs to be recorded. The League of Nations has been crossing rough water of late. Its enemies have been rejoicing over its difficulties and even venturing to prophesy the end they desire—its complete failure. Its friends sometimes felt bewildered about its future. In an hour of comparative gloom, comes this striking instance of complete success. In pre-League days, vituperation and violence were the recognised means of settling disputes between nations. To-day the League spirit has inspired two small but by no means unimportant nations to settle their quarrel by reason and mutual goodwill. Unfortunately it is difficult to accept the event, in these days of crisis, as a harbinger of present-day tendencies. The political situation in Europe is severely strained. When one examines the tone of the relations between Rome and Belgrade, between revisionist Hungary and the Little Entente, between Germany and France, one cannot look to further developments without some feeling of alarm. France is faced by Germany in the throes of an extreme Nationalist rising. President Roosevelt has made a magnificent effort, in his historic announcement yesterday abandoning, probably for ever, America's traditional policy of isolation, to lessen the growing distrust. It needs, however, the utmost tact and adjustments of viewpoint if new combustible material is not to be accumulated. Herr Hitler holds the key to the entire problem. A forecast of the statement which he is to make in the Reichstag to-day declares that while he will emphasise Germany's claims to equality, the general tone will be conciliatory. It is to be hoped that the belief will not prove unfounded. President Roosevelt has placed all his cards upon the table. Surely the time has come for Herr Hitler to make a constructive gesture.

How Mythology is Formed

Savage tribes in the jungles of South America worship the image of a white man in a silk hat and frock coat. Explorers have collected many carved wooden staffs bearing this odd image; a white man in old-fashioned dress, often carved with genuine skill, with minor details of costume faithfully rendered. Medicine men used such staffs extensively, believing that all manner of diseases could be cured with them. A long investigation has finally produced an explanation. More than 200 years ago a Scotch colony was settled on the Gulf of San Blas. William Patterson was the leading spirit in the venture. He was a skilled and conscientious physician, and worked many cures among his barbaric native neighbours. As a result, the simple savages canonized him when he died—or, rather, raised him to a position of godhood. Members of his own race have long since forgotten all about him, but he remains to-day a potent legend in the distant jungles. This is as unusual a kind of fame as any white man ever attained; and it leads one into fruitless but interesting speculation about the origins of other, more widely-known gods of old days, because it sheds such a revealing light on the way in which primitive people form their myths. When we first learn of myths, most of us wonder how people could be so inventive; the answer, apparently, being that they aren't. Myths aren't invented; they are built up unconsciously about frameworks of fact. In a world which has problems enough of its own this is of very small importance. But it is interesting.

Children and the Cinemas

Recently we commented on the need for a more desirable type of cinema film for children. But a report by Dr. Gross, the military physician at Hanipstead, indicates a more important issue. He declares, as a result of a questionnaire, that the cinema is injurious to the health and minds of children. In his quest for information, Dr. Gross received 500 replies from children whose ages ranged from 11 to 14 years. Sixty children declared they never go to a cinema. Sixty nine per cent. complained of visual fatigue following cinema attendance. The boys appeared more devoted to the silver screen than the girls, one lad stating

THE MODERN PROBLEM.

BEAUTY OR BRAINS?

By LIONEL HALE

Here is a story with a moral. An officer in the Chinese army (so it is reported) was found by his brother officers on the verge of blowing his brains out. When, amicably or by force, they had dissuaded him, they asked the natural question "Why?" A large tear rolled down his impassive cheek and he replied "Because I am ugly, and life is insupportable for an ugly man."

Ugliness may seem at first sight to be a frivolous reason for so very unpleasant, so very final a thing as suicide. But the more usual reasons for suicide (if so unreasonable a thing can be said to have reasons) have much less to commend them than ugliness has. Financial troubles or domestic worries—quarrels with my bank manager or my wife—will not drive me to despair, because there are remedies for them. Troubles of that sort may easily disappear. Bank managers, and even wives, may relent. It would be shortsighted not to wait.

NOSES NEVER DISAPPEAR.

But ugliness is irredeemable, and to be ugly is to remain ugly. Overdrafts often disappear, but noses never.

It must not be thought that I am accusing, for reasons of ugliness, that very ugly thing suicide. There is no excuse for suicide, because there is no redress. It is unforgivable, because there is nobody left to forgive. But I see what was in the mind of that Chinese officer. He could never be beautiful, and if he could not be beautiful he would be nothing at all. If he could not have a Roman nose he would die a Roman death.

But observe how old-fashioned he is! In the twentieth century he actually cares for good looks! But we up-to-date moderns have ceased to care for them. We up-to-date moderns no longer worship personal beauty. I have yet to discover what we up-to-date moderns do care for, but it certainly isn't that. Old gentlemen in clubs tell me (and I always listen attentively to old gentlemen in clubs) that there are no beautiful women to-day. The old gentlemen, when they were young gentlemen, stood on chairs to see Lily Langtry, they that he attended the cinema six times a week! As many as 229 testified that they dreamed at night following a visit to the cinema and in 69 per cent. of these cases the dreams were nightmares. The majority, with the refreshing candour of children, admitted they learned nothing through the films, while some, with equal naivety said they learned American slang. Practically no evidence was adduced revealing any mental or moral benefits to be obtained from films, and this surely is one of the most serious accusations the cinema industry has to face. There is also a big onus on parents. If only from the health point of view, it would seem that children should not be allowed to attend the cinemas more than once a week. There is sufficient evidence to suggest that too frequent attendance plays a part in undermining the health.

remember. Listening to them, I blush. I cannot get away from the fact that I never stood on a chair to look at any beauty in my life. Are there no Jersey Lilies nowadays, or is it just that we set less store by physical beauty? Is a new goddess among us unnoticed, or has she yet to appear, to set us all clambering on chairs? Perhaps there are no goddesses, because there are no worshippers.

We are a sadly moral lot. We are always wanting faces to be "interesting" or "strong" or "full of character." It is not entirely the fault of the men, that they do not value feminine beauty as they did. The women encourage this new vice: for the women do not want to be beautiful as much as to be clever. Give a woman to-day the choice between beauty and brains and she will choose wrong—she will choose brains. She would rather men listened to her than looked at her.

The Americans have a phrase for the sort of old-fashioned woman I would like to have back. "Beautiful but Dumb" they call her. Who cares? All women ought to be beautiful; and if it is at the cost of being dumb, well, I see no great loss in that.

As for men, the case would appear to be hopeless. When shall I meet again a room-full of men who openly pride themselves on their good looks? If you call a man good-looking nowadays he thinks you are insulting him. He wants nothing more to be asked of his face than that it should be properly shaved; and women, if they want to flatter their husbands (or their future husbands, or in these days of divorce, their past husbands), tell them that they are "delightfully ugly." "Tell me how you broke your nose," they whisper adoringly. "It gives you such an air."

I rebel against all this. And I rebel on altruistic grounds, for I myself am much better off as things are. There is no danger of my being insulted by being called good-looking. I wish there were. I should like to be a Ouida hero—about six foot and a half tall, perfectly proportioned, with a manly chest, black hair, eyebrows and moustache (and a waxed moustache at that), large blue eyes, a noble brow, a chiselled nose and wearing the uniform of some decorative regiment. For that, I would put up with any of your modern insults.

It is a sad thing that we have lost our vanity. We have allowed it to be swept away and have replaced it with baser, duller, more energetic interests. "Here lies the twentieth century" will be the inscription on our tombs in the Cemetery of Time. "Too Busy to be Beautiful." Anyone these days of paint and mass production can be just averagely beautiful, and no more; the general standard is doubtless higher; a certain comeliness is within the reach of all; and while there are no Jersey Lilies, it is possible to glid the ordinary lily into passable prettiness. Mediocrity, having conquered our politicians, has turned its attention to our faces.

Only a Chinese officer made a stand. Only one solitary idealist, out of all the oracles of the world, remembered Ouida's Guardsman and was ashamed. He might have fired the world; and when his up-to-date brother officers stopped him, what a candle was put out! A Chinese officer was saved, but what a martyr was lost!

"The child specialist says she has a perfectly marvelous distinctive sense."

The Very Idea!

COMING TO OUR CENSORS

By Eddie Kelly, Last Say.

A film reviewer in a local contemporary complains that there's not enough censorship in sex films.

He thinks that the Hongkong censors are so busy plying the scissors on gangster films that they haven't time to waste on mere osculations.

Personally, we think it would be a censorable idea if they didn't stop at films.

We are all in favour of letting the censors expend their activities, so that people outside the film world may have a chance of witnessing this great power for good at work.

To save the time of the censors we have started on some of the nursery rhymes, which have now been thoroughly refined, distilled, filtered, muzzled and made respectable on the lines suggested by our contemporary.

Take, for instance, "Mary Had a Little Lamb." It fairly reeks with suggestiveness. A blush comes to our cheek as we think of the hideous suggestions contained in the last line.

Here is our revised rhyme: Mary had a little lamb. Its fleece was white as snow. And everywhere that Mary went With the exception of bathrooms, bedrooms, public telephones, and bathing sheds, that lamb was sure to go.

Next, take "Humpty Dumpty." This is a most seditious rhyme, alleging, as it does, a condition of serious inefficiency in the armed forces of His Majesty the King. More than this, the verse deals with a character of the utmost depravity. We are told in the first line that the character "sat on a wall."

Why did he sit on a wall? Why do you sit on walls? That man Humpty Dumpty wasn't on the wall for any good purpose. Nobody ever is. What was it the wall of? And who saw him sitting on the wall? Why, we repeat, did he sit on the wall at all. If you think what we think, we will delete the word "wall." The third line is rankly seditious on the face of it. It is a gratuitous insult to the Boy Scout movement, to the South Wales Borderers, the Royal Navy, and the Hongkong government.

HUSH-A-BYE BABY.

Gross indecency. The first two lines indicate the depravity of modern nursery rhymes.

Hush-a-bye Baby. On the Tree Top. The statement that babies are to be found, like this, on tree tops, can only have a pernicious effect on the young minds of to-day. This is no time for mock modesty or for mincing words. The whole rhyme must be, modified as follows:

Hush a bye Baby. Under the gooseberry bush.

"Old Mother Hubbard" will have to be banned. The suggestion that the cupboard was bare is one that cannot be overlooked. This must be stamped out. We can have no nudity in this Colony.

Simple Simon. We were in two minds about "Simple Simon." However, the publishers have agreed to delete certain offending passages so we agreed to pass it.

The original verse read: Simple Simon, met a pleman. Going to the fair. Said Simple Simon to the pleman.

"Let Me taste your ware." The first line, with the exception of the words "Simple" and "pio" is passable. But the second line must be deleted altogether. The mere fact that this Simon person was going to meet a blonde woman is sufficient to contaminate the minds of our youthful readers. Third line is censored in accordance with the ruling made in respect to the first line.

The word "taste" in the fourth line is objectionable. To have a "taste" means nothing more or less than indulgence in alcoholic stimulants, and this is to be deplored.

The corrected verse reads as follows:

Simon met a man. Going to the fair. Said Simon to the man. Let me — your ware.

The most vulgar work we have ever had to deal with is a depraved thing called "Three Blind Mice."

The third stanza is terrible. . . . "They all ran after the farmer's wife!" Tut! Tut! Tut! Words fall us.

The next line is even worse. "She Cut Off Their Tails With A Carving Knife."

This is terrible, and has been referred to the S.P. C.A. The whole work is banned.

SILVER OUTLOOK

LOWER RATES ARE EXPECTED

After yesterday afternoon's fall, the dollar was again quoted at 1s. 4d. this morning, but the opinion in the market, which seems quite steady at the moment, is that lower rates will soon prevail.

Silver was down slightly in London yesterday, the market ruling uncertain. America sold, but buyers appeared to be satisfied.

The rise of 3/4 in New York is attributed largely to shorts covering.

A new photographic studio, the King's Studio, has been opened on the second floor of the National City Bank Building by Mr. Wan King Nam, who for the last twelve years has been associated with the Ming Yuen Studio.

Killed by Too Much Leisure

A strange tragedy adds another to the long list of men and women who, retiring after an active life, commit suicide simply because they have "nothing to do."

The latest case is that of Mr. Thomas John Hughes, of Liverpool, who was still comparatively a young man—only 46—when he died.

The business he created—Messrs. T. J. Hughes and Co., Ltd., drapers and outfitters—was one of the best known in Liverpool. He founded it when he was 22 in a small shop with five assistants. When he retired three years ago it had grown to an establishment with 46 departments and a staff of 700.

20 YEARS WITHOUT A REST.

To achieve this Mr. Hughes gave himself no rest from business for 20 years. He had no time for a hobby, and it was said he never took a holiday. When, three years ago, he retired a wealthy man his immense energies were stilled, and for the first time he suddenly found himself with nothing to do.

Mr. Hughes sailed in the Liverpool to Belfast passenger steamer Ulster Queen, and a few miles south of the Isle of Man he climbed on to the rail of the ship, shot himself through the head, and dropped into the sea. The body has not been recovered.

"If a man after many years of active life becomes completely idle his brain, muscles, and all the organs of the body stagnate and waste products poison them," a doctor told a reporter. "This results in melancholy and an exaggeration of all little pains and bodily discomforts."

"One or more hobbies are essential at such a time to prevent rapid degeneration of the brain."

SPECIAL MESSAGE TO

Pact because it had become increasingly evident that the assurance of world political and economic peace and stability was threatened by selfish and short-sighted policies, actions and threats of action.

The deep-rooted desire of Americans for better living conditions and the avoidance of war was shared by the mass of humanity in every country.

As a means to this end, he had stressed the practical necessity of reducing armaments.

In his Message, President Roosevelt also emphasised that it is high time every nation understood that the invasion of any other nation or the destruction of national sovereignty could only be prevented by the complete elimination of the weapons that make such a course possible. The elimination will make the little nation relatively more secure against the great nation.

Large armies, he goes on, are responsible, more than any other factor, for government budget deficits and threatened bankruptcy. Disarmament is the only way to prevent invasion.

Americans realise that weapons of offence are needed only if other nations possess them. They will freely give them up if all the nations in the world do likewise.—Reuter.

"NATURE IS A BLOWSY, CARELESS, PROFOUNDLY STUPID OLD LADY."—F. F. Van DeWater.

Wong Yuen, a boiler-maker, was injured in the arm in a fight with a fellow-workman at Shaukiwan yesterday, and had to go into hospital.

John Carlos, an American seaman, has gone to the Kowloon Hospital, following injuries received when he fell over the seawall while riding a bicycle at Kowloon yesterday.

The Rev. F. Z. "Bobs" Ford, the Rev. H. F. G. and Harry Chappell left for Singapore this morning by the B. and L. vessel s.s. Sibbana. They will spend a fortnight in Malaya and then hope to catch a tanker back to England.

The driver of a motorcar in Des Voeux Road Central yesterday evening had a narrow escape when, on crossing the road to go into Pottinger Street, he emerged from behind an East-bound tram to find a West-bound tram bearing down on him. He just managed to scrap past the car, but suffered a damaged mudguard and running board in the process.

Racehorse
Bolts into Crowd

3 WOMEN HURT

Three women were seriously injured and a man slightly hurt at Hereford steeplechases, when a horse bolted after a fall and dashed among the crowd in the grand-stand enclosure.

The women, who were taken to the Herefordshire General Hospital, were:

Mrs. Helena Brook, of Suffolk-street, Birmingham;

Mrs. Harriett Mason, of High-street, Cradley Heath, Staffordshire; and Mrs. Sarah Garbett, of Ledbury-road, Hereford.

The horse was Mrs. McGregor's Ziozon, and the incident occurred when it fell at the fence approaching the grand-stand in the principal race, the Lutwyche Cup Steeplechase, throwing its rider, Mr. C. H. Evans.

He retained his hold of the reins, however, and as the horse scrambled to its feet and bolted, he hung on. Eventually he had to release the reins, and the horse crashed through the enclosure railings.

After knocking down the three women and the man it continued its mad career and went at a great pace towards a 7ft. fence which divides the racecourse from the roadway.

It cleared this in a great leap, but fell on the other side and broke its back.

"WEE GEORGE"
WOOD MARRIEDATLANTIC DASH FOR ACTRESS BRIDE

It is revealed that "Wee George," Wood, the comedian, who was born in Sunderland 35 years ago and first appeared on the stage at the age of 11, was secretly married in New York on April 7 to an American actress, Miss Ewing Eaton.

He arrived in Liverpool with his bride, a beautiful blonde, and at his home at Ealing, W., he told a reporter the story of his romance.

"We were married," he said, "on the seventh day of the month at the seventh hour (night marriage ceremonies are allowable in New York), and now I am in the seventh heaven of delight."

"I retract all I ever said about the delights of being a bachelor. I met Miss Eaton in November at the Hippodrome, Birmingham. I was the top-liner with de Groot, but she, I found, was stealing my thunder."

Bachelor's Conversion

"I decided that such a state of affairs could not go on. Promptly I invited her to accompany me to a ball, and later I took her to the Water Rats Ball. What happened there might have ruined for ever my chances of marrying her. I had to propose the toast of the ladies and speak as a confirmed bachelor."

"Came the New Year, and I decided to go to America on business—strictly business, you understand. I left on March 22, did none of the business I had intended to do, but simply concentrated on Miss Eaton—with what success you see here now."

"We were married; Miss Eaton's people are pleased; she is pleased; I am pleased; my mother is pleased—everything in the garden is lovely. Now we are going off on our honeymoon, but we are not going to tell anyone just where."

Miss Eaton is a brilliant pianist and violinist. Her father is a St. Louis, Missouri, business man.

AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY.

PRESIDENT'S WARNING

Washington, May 16.

President Roosevelt to-day appealed directly to rulers of nations to reduce armaments to eliminate entirely weapons of aggression, to agree to refrain from sending any armed force whatsoever beyond their own borders, to forget petty national aims and join sincerely in a move to assure peace and economic recovery.

The president asked for specific steps to be taken immediately and declared that if any nation interposed with obstructions, the civilised world would know where the responsibility for failure lay. He mentioned no nation by name.

As an immediate goal, President Roosevelt asked for the success of the Disarmament Conference, proposing the adoption of Premier MacDonald's plan for the reduction of French armaments, the stabilising of German armaments and the establishment of a consultative pact to promote peace. He advocated a later conference to carry these steps still further and urged in the meantime, an agreement that no nation should increase existing armaments and, provided the terms of arms limitation were faithfully kept, that they would send no armed force across frontiers.

Contrary to diplomatic practice President Roosevelt's appeal was addressed to the heads of the states which will be represented at the London Conference, including Russia.

Officials deprecated the suggestion that the inclusion of Russia was a gesture towards American recognition of the Soviet.

"If all nations agree wholly to eliminate weapons which make possible a successful attack, defences will automatically become impregnable frontiers and the independence of every nation will be secure. The ultimate objective of the Disarmament Conference must be the complete elimination of all offensive weapons. The immediate objective is a substantial reduction," declared President Roosevelt.

The World Economic Conference must establish order in place of the present chaos by stabilising currencies, freeing world trade, raising price levels and by supplementing individual domestic programmes for economic recovery by wise and considered international action, he added.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

Accuses Powers of Trying to Wreck Conference.

Berlin, May 16.

An official statement on the German disarmament policy accuses other powers of trying to wreck the Disarmament Conference on the question of the unification of army systems in order to avoid an approach to the next point, dealing with material disarmament.

The statement upholds the necessity of German equality and claims that contrasting Powers are armed to the teeth and our arsenals are empty."

The statement questions the wisdom of shouldering any new obligation without any concessions in advance.

President von Hindenburg to-day granted an audience to Chancellor Hitler and Herr Frick.—Reuter.

War Out of Question.

Berlin, May 16.

After the hysterical atmosphere of the week-end, the newspapers display less interest in the foreign political situation, probably in anticipation of Herr Hitler's Reichstag speech, but the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung claims that war is out of the question, since no nation will have anything to gain, least of all Germany, who is sure to be beaten by such a combination as France and Poland.

The article asserts that Britain and America are too hard-hit economically, while "France's lust for power cannot be so great as to blind her to the fact that an unjustly waged and pointless war would ultimately bring retribution in its train."—Reuter Special.

CROWD STAMPEDES

Consternation was caused on the fairground Bedford when a lioness escaped from a cage and started on a tour on her own round the fair, which opens to-morrow.

The ground is normally a rendezvous for motor omnibuses. To-day many people, including a number of children, were watching the erection of booths and stalls.

Suddenly the lioness was seen meandering round, sniffing here and there. At once there were warning shouts and a general stampede for shelter and safety.

NAZIS AND AUSTRIA

COUNTER DEMAND FOR APOLOGY

Vienna, May 16.

The Nazi envoy, Dr. Frank who was turned out of the country by the Government, has returned to Germany, following insulting remarks against the Government in an after-dinner speech at Graz. This, and his visit, resulted in an Austrian protest to Berlin, as well as a German protest to Vienna.

It appears that the Government had prohibited Frank from addressing a Nazi meeting at Graz, where he was to have been the guest of honour; whereupon Frank decided to leave for Germany immediately. Meanwhile the authorities at Graz telephoned to Vienna and reported that insults were contained in a speech by Frank the previous evening, and for this reason the Government decided to request Frank to leave the country immediately. He was already en route to Salzburg by motor, where the ultimatum was delivered by the police.

Frank said he must have a snack, and entered a hotel. He left an hour later for the frontier.

Herr Tauschitz, the Austrian Minister to Berlin, called on Von Neurath and made a protest against Frank's speech at Graz.—Reuter.

"I am with the greatest pleasure that I have received by taking Phosferine during my training for the 1931 Malayan Weight-Lifting Championships.
As I had to reduce some seven or eight pounds off my normal bodyweight in order to enable me to compete in the 9-stone class, I had to go into very strenuous training, and with the help of Phosferine, I not only won the championship of that class, but also the Individual Championship, and, in addition I broke a British Record.
I therefore have no hesitation in recommending Phosferine to any physical culturist or athlete, whether he be in ordinary training or preparing for a competition, as it

"PATSY" HENDREN.

Sussex, Gloucester and Middlesex lost their 100 percent records in the County Cricket championship as a result of the programme concluded to-day, leaving Lancashire, who thoroughly trounced Middlesex to enjoy the distinction alone.

Surrey, Notts and Kent recorded their first outright victories of the season, and the West Indies enjoyed their initial win of the tour, against Essex.

The West Indies followed up a rather poor batting display in the first visit to the wicket with an excellent knock of 370 for six declared. Da Costa reached his century before the closure was applied.

Martindale shared the honours, dismissing Essex in their first innings for 86. To accomplish this he captured eight wickets for 32, the best bowling achievement of the team to date.

"Patsy" Hendren was in his gayest and most forceful mood against the Lancashire bowlers, but a remarkable effort went unrewarded. Hendren actually went through the innings to score 162 not out in a total of 299. Lancashire topped this aggregate thanks somewhat more consistent batting. Watson heading the individual efforts with 139 and Iddon assisting with 98.

Mayer proved himself unplayable against Hampshire when Warwick won with ease. The bowler bagged a total of 12 wickets for 82 runs in the course of the match. Hampshire after two visits to the wicket, failing to reach Warwick's score of 315. Kilner and Wyatt were chiefly responsible for this score. Kilner hitting up 102 and the former Test captain being unlucky to lose his wicket after scoring 90.

John Langridge helped himself to another century for Essex against Glamorgan, but the Welsh team stayed off the field by aggregating 613 for the two innings.

Sussex tried hard to force the issue by closing their innings at 304 for 8 (Langridge 140), but they had to remain content with the consolation prize of first innings points.

FREEMAN AGAIN.
Kent owed their narrow success against Somerset to A. P. Freeman, who came along at a critical time with some typical bowling which

BORDERERS MAY YET BECOME THE CHAMPIONS

HEAD FOOTBALL TABLE

TO-DAY'S VITAL MATCH

The South Wales Borderers, thanks to a decision of the Football Council, following a precedent established in connexion with other matches, have been placed directly in the running for the First Division championship of football league.

Yesterday it was decided that their game with the Police played last month should carry with it four points. This brings the Borderers programme to a finish and leaves them at the head of the table on level pegging with the Artillery, but enjoying a superior goal average.

If South China lose this afternoon to St. Joseph's in the last league game of the season, the Borderers will meet the R.A. for the championship. If the Chinese draw, they and the Artillery and Borderers will play off a triangular tournament for the title.

One the other hand, if South China capture both points to-day, as they should, they will win the championship leaving the Borderers runners-up.

LEAGUE TABLE.

The amended league table, consequent on the Football Council's decision last night and the Club v Athletic match yesterday is appended:

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
R.A.	20	15	0	5	60	30	30

CHARITY FOOTBALL.

A charity football match has been arranged for next Saturday in aid of the recently formed Children's Playgrounds Association. The contesting teams will be the Combined Services and the Combined Chinese.

The match will be played on the Hongkong Football Club ground at Happy Valley, and is timed to commence at 4.30 p.m.

The following team and reserves have been selected to represent the Combined Services:—Gnr. Combe (Royal Artillery); Gnr. Allen (Royal Artillery) and L/C Mullane (South Wales Borderers), capt.; Marine Davay (Royal Marines), Gnr. Pardon (Royal Artillery) and Pte. Podmore (South Wales Borderers); Pte. Baldry (Lincoln), L. S. A. Usher (Royal Navy), A. B. Purkins (Royal Navy), L/C Ridley (Lincoln) and Gnr. Seal (Royal Artillery).

Reserves:—Pte. Johnson, Pte. Morrison, Cpl. Underwood, Pte. Mathias and Pte. Duncan (South Wales Borderers), Stoker Reed (Royal Navy), Cpl. Ains, L/C Cork and L/C Harding (Lincoln).

FOOTBALL RULES.

Proposed amendments and additions to existing rules were drafted at a meeting of the Hongkong Football Association Council last evening, and these will be put before the forthcoming annual general meeting. The financial side of the season's activities was also reported upon.

It was mentioned that a team from the Philippines Amateur Athletic Federation would be arriving here towards the end of this month or early in June, and arrangements were discussed for a game with the visitors.

CLUB EARN POINT IN LAST MATCH

Wasted Chances to Beat the Athletic

A draw was a fair result in yesterday's First Division football match between the Club and Chinese Athletic, when the teams shared four goals.

Nevertheless, the Club had two magnificent chances of snatching both points in the closing stages, but Williams was hasty in his shooting and ballooned over the bar.

This game saw the Club complete their fixtures for the season, an achievement shared only by the Artillery, Borderers, Navy and South China.

The Athletic yesterday showed infinitely better idea of team work, and in contrast the Club, and in particular the forward line, relied mainly on individual effort.

Nevertheless the exchanges were evenly distributed. Williams put the Club ahead but Mak So replied before the interval and the Athletic went into the lead shortly after the restart, when Au King-sung neatly placed the ball in the net.

A clever piece of work by E. Strange culminated in the scores again being levelled, and the Club, by this time enjoying the greater share of the attack, and giving the Chinese defence some really anxious moments, should certainly have obtained a deciding goal.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

To the casual observer, Laurel Street looked like one of the nicest streets in the middle-class suburb in which it was located. But trouble broke on the night of June 13. And that trouble is what the film, commencing to-day at the Queen's Theatre and entitled "The Night of June 13," is all about.

The film is an exciting melodrama, culminating in an unusual courtroom scene, with Olive Brook, as John Curry, nearly convicted of murdering his wife. It features fine performances by Brook, by Mary Boland as a nosy neighbour, by Charlie Ruggles as her husband, by Charley Grapewin, by Lila Lee as the innocent cause of all the trouble, by Adrienne Allen as Curry's neurotic wife and by Gene Raymond and France Dee as two young lovers. It tells a strange story of commonplace people, and tells it uncommonly well.

"Yes, Mr. Brown"

It was Nicky Baumann's ambition to become Mr. Brown's partner so that the firm should in future be known as Brown & Baumann. Nicky managed the firm's Vienna factory, and was daily expecting a visit from the chief. To that end he instructed the staff in the importance of observing the courtesies and honours of the occasion. Mr. Brown's enquiries should always be answered with "Yes, Mr. Brown." Brown was delighted with his reception, and if he wondered at the musical refrain he did not let an eyelid. Things might have gone smoothly if Nicky had not squabbled with his wife, Clara. Then we should not have had the riotous fun which followed a dinner party where Nicky's secretary played the part of Mrs. Baumann and Clara posed as the secretary. A merry, cheerful mix-up, offering Jack Buchanan many opportunities. "Yes, Mr. Brown," is good entertainment.

"Sherlock Holmes"

In "Sherlock Holmes," the Fox Film showing at the Oriental Theatre on Friday and Saturday, the great detective, portrayed by Oliver Brook, accomplishes the end of alien criminal rule in England and even the score with his ancient enemy Moriarty.

While the character of "Sherlock Holmes" is preserved, the story prepared for the screen by Bertram Millhauser for Fox Films is new. It is based on one of Conan Doyle's most fascinating tales and William K. Howard, who directed the picture, is said to have given the production both speed and polish, making Holmes a whimsical and ironical personality.

"Red Dust"

After being in preparation for nearly a year, the long awaited screen version of Wilson Collison's play, "Red Dust," comes next Sunday to the Queen's Theatre with Clark Gable and Jean Harlow co-starring.

In one of the most powerful roles of his career, Gable is cast as Dennis Caron, brutal overlord of rubber plantations in Indo-China, who becomes the centre of a dramatic love triangle. Miss Harlow portrays the seductive Vantine, who makes regular trips up the river from Saigon to visit the rubber plantations. Gene Raymond is seen as Gary Willis, young French engineer who is fever stricken through one of the big crises of his marital life. Mary Astor plays his wife, who comes into the tropics with a lot of pretensions that are soon lost.

Many strangely varied characters are thrown together in a fierce counterpoint of dramatic action. The struggles with the elements of wind, dust and rain storms provide a continual menace to the lives of all concerned.

SLIGHT COLLISION.

AMBULANCE INVOLVED WITH MR. A. L. SHIELDS' CAR

When entering Stubbs Road from Barker Road, shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning, a St. John Ambulance Brigade vehicle collided with Mr. A. L. Shields' car, in charge of his Chinese chauffeur, and proceeding down Stubbs Road from Magazine Gap. Both drivers made an attempt to avert the collision. The ambulance and private car escaped with minor damage.

No-one was injured.

DEATH OF POPULAR LOCAL SPORTSMAN

MR. B. M. TALATI

His many friends in the Colony, particularly in sporting and Scouting circles, will learn with extreme regret of the death of Mr. Burjor M. Talati, B.A. (Hongkong Univ.), at Bombay yesterday, following an operation. He was only 26 years of age.

The only son of Mr. M. P. Talati, J.P., who is in Hongkong, and Mrs. Talati, who is at present in Bombay, the deceased was lately employed in India as a representative of Messrs. Butterfield and Swire in the sugar business. He was educated at St. Joseph's College, Hongkong, and later became Scoutmaster of the College Troop. He graduated at the Hongkong University. He was also a member of the V.R.C. and was a swimmer of no mean ability. Deceased was popular in a very wide circle, and his untimely death will be greatly mourned.

Much sympathy will be extended to the bereaved parents in the great loss they have been called upon to bear.

LOVE OR MONEY?

both is remembered in the will. You, needless to say, are remembered. Save for a few small legacies to the servants and others, you receive the bulk of the estate."

She had automatically expected that. If he had anticipated surprise or delight, Mr. Garretson was mistaken.

"Barry was not remembered?" the girl repeated.

"Barry receives one dollar."

"Then," Mona said eagerly, "all that needs to be done is for me to sign over $10,000,000 to Barry! It's as plain as day. John wished it. He said he would do anything to make me happy. Ten millions is his own figure, isn't it? In the unsigned will?" She ran to the desk, searching for paper, for pen.

"Hold on, hold on! What are you going to do?"

"I don't know. You'll have to do it. Draw up the paper, whatever is necessary, so that from to-day, from now Barry has that money! I'll sign it. John wished it, too."

"My child," Mr. Garretson spoke to her gently. "It isn't as simple as that." He shook his head.

"Even if you were free to give away $10,000,000 it couldn't be done by a scratch of the pen. But you are not free! The latest will, the one upon which the court will act, deprives you of the right to make such a gift."

"I cannot give it to Barry?"

"You cannot give it to anyone. You simply have the use of the fortune. If you marry again the fortune will not be yours! You are a wealthy woman, my child. That is, you are a wealthy widow. Marry again and you automatically enrich half a dozen charitable institutions. The Sailors' Home. Hospital for Cancer. An orphanage in the Bronx. And—ah, yes—a snake farm in Brazil."

"A snake farm!"

"An institution, rather. You see, Towny was bitten by a snake once, while in Brazil. Only antivenom from this snake farm at Sao Paulo could have saved his life. Naturally, since the place gave him some of the best years of his existence, he had a feeling of regard for it."

"But," Mona went on, dismissing the snake farm, "I can't marry again, and retain the fortune? Did John suppose that my first thought would be marriage? How could he!"

"Not yours, perhaps. But a wealthy young widow is always besieged by offers. Particularly when she is attractive."

"Besieged by offers? That does not mean that she has to accept!"

Mr. Garretson was grave in his answer. "Mona," he said, "I think that the condition was

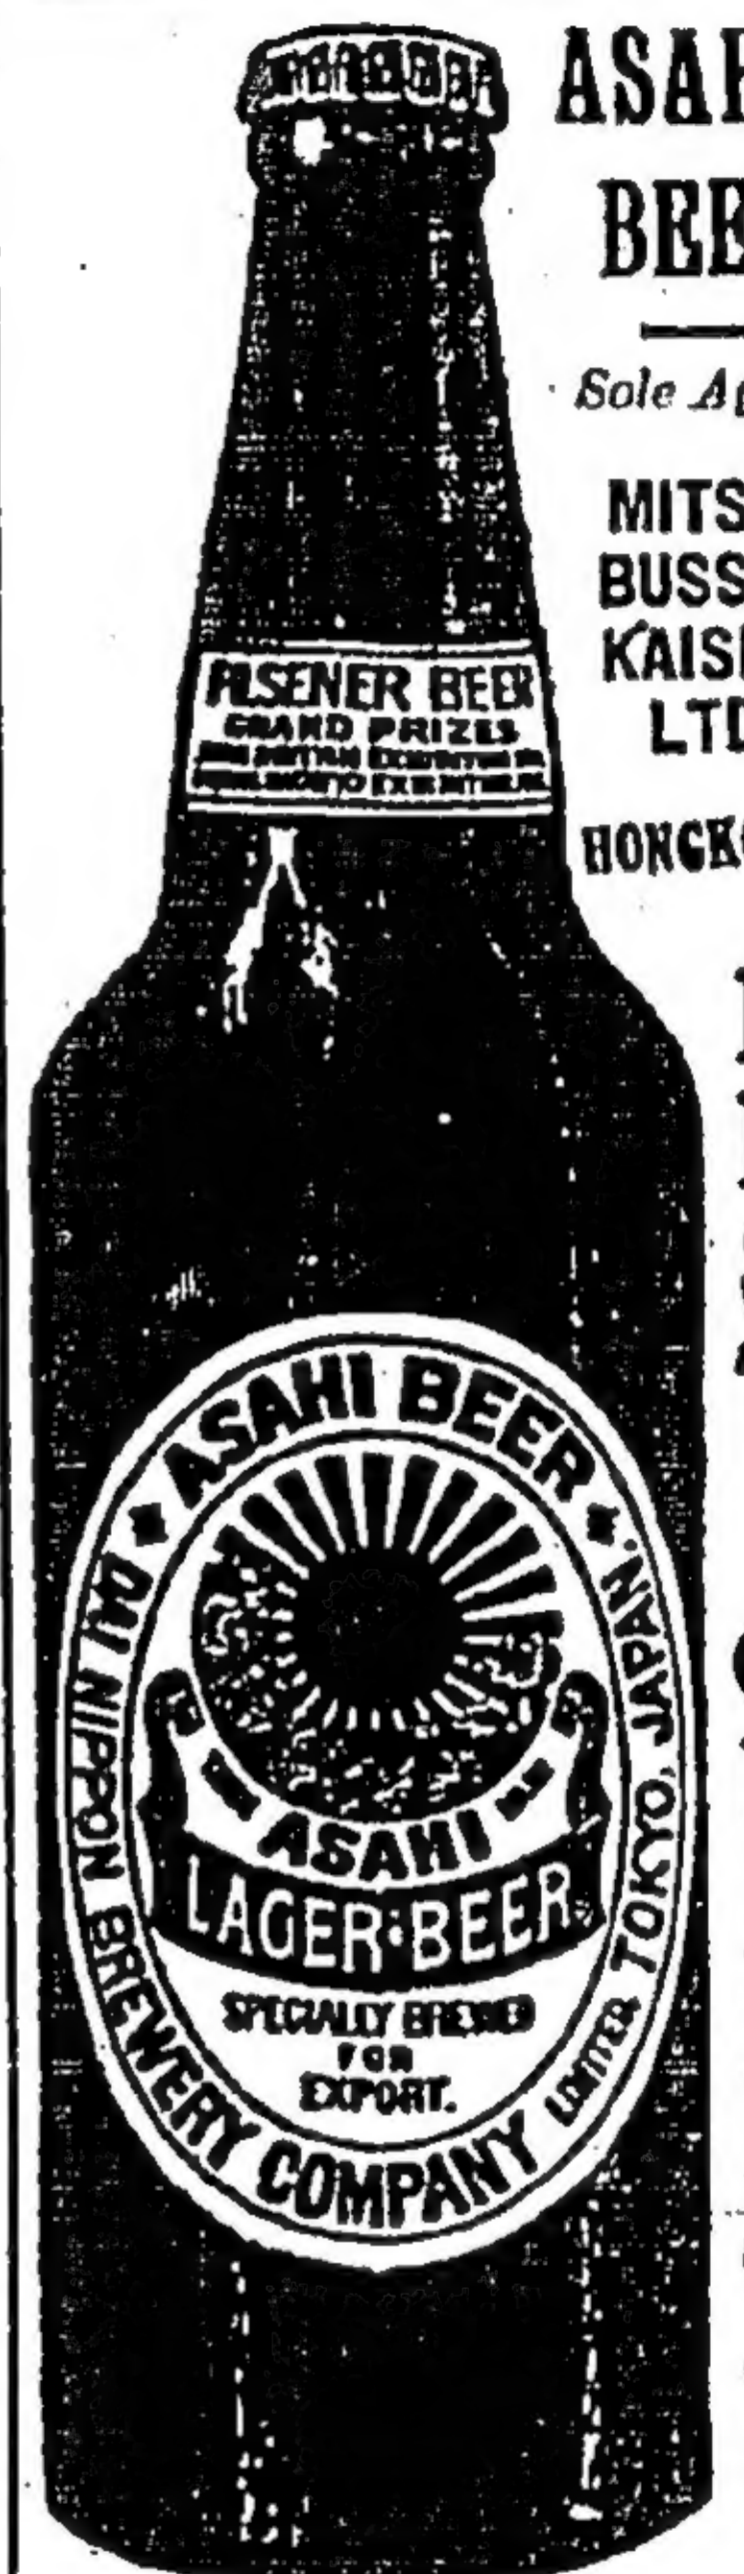

When Baby Is FRACTIOUS

You can be sure that his stomach and bowels need attention. Give him a few doses of Baby's Own Tablets and then note what a bright and happy baby you have once more.

The great advantage about Baby's Own Tablets is their pleasant, sweet taste. Children like to take them, and thus the upset which accompanies the administration of ordinary crude remedies such as castor oil, salts, senna, is avoided.

Baby's Own Tablets are a reliable juvenile health safeguard for the youngest baby and for children up to about ten or eight. The formula is that of a highly-qualified medical practitioner with special experience in children's ailments.

For stomach and bowel troubles, ailments resulting from constipation or faulty digestion, for worms and diarrhoea, these tablets are splendidly and speedily efficacious. For the troubles and pains of the teething period Baby's Own bring miraculous relief, though they are guaranteed to contain neither opiate nor narcotic of any kind. All wise parents keep Baby's Own Tablets handy.

simply a sort of protest against young Barry. Torny's last, you know. For just after your marriage, Barry wrote to his uncle that you, Torny's wife, were the young woman of whom he had spoken. Barry told Torny in fact that he wanted to marry you. And from various indications, Torny believed that you were in love with Barry.

"I am," Mona said slowly. "And now what can I do?"

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

I hope that all of my readers are by now thoroughly familiar with the original three forcing bid in the one-over-one system. It is true that it does not arise very often, but when it does, what a thrill it will give you to arrive easily and successfully at that grand slam!

Grand slams are to-day worth a lot of points under the new scoring and you do not want to miss them. The three bid entirely eliminates the duplication of values.

Here is one that was played by John Rau and his partner the other day at Deal, N. J. You will remember Mr. Rau and his partner, William Barrett, were the two young boys who made such a name for themselves a few years ago by carrying away a national championship before they were 21 years of age. And to prove that it wasn't entirely luck, these two boys have continued to make a remarkable tournament record for themselves.

If you are the dealer on this hand, you know that if your partner holds the ace of spades, it is a sure slam in hearts. Mr. Rau, in the South, opened the bidding with three hearts.

This is the forcing bid which says, "Partner, I am not interested in whether or not you hold hearts. I want definite information regarding your ace holding. Name your highest ace, regardless of length of the suit. If you have no ace, bid three no trump."

Mr. Rau's partner responded with three spades, thus definitely showing the ace of spades. Mr. Rau then bid four spades. The naming of a second suit by the original bidder is asking for the king of that suit. Mr. Rau's partner, not having the king of

AUSTRALIANS IN HONGKONG.

ASSOCIATION FORMED LAST NIGHT

Australian residents of Hongkong, at a large gathering at the Gloucester Building last night, decided to form an Association here.

To be called the Australian Association of Hongkong and South China, this body will have for its objects the promotion of Australian ideals and the fostering of a spirit of comradeship amongst men of the Commonwealth in Hongkong and South China.

Those eligible for membership include Australians and New Zealanders, and any person who, for a continuous period of five years, has resided in Australia. Full membership, however, will be limited to Australian born.

Subscription to the Association will be $10 per annum.

The following Committee was elected by last night's meeting:

Dr. H. D. Matthews, president; Mr. T. A. Mildren, vice-president; Mr. J. M. Kelloher, treasurer; Mr. N. Stockton, secretary, and Messrs. J. Hunter, A. W. Ingram, J. Way, H. Ching and Dr. Traill.

Among those present at the meeting were:

Mr. J. Way, Mr. C. de S. Robertson, Mr. A. W. Ingram, Mr. J. M. Kelloher, Mr. E. F. Selk, Mr. T. A. Ingram, Mr. D. Orr, Mr. L. E. Morgan, Mr. J. L. Kent, Mr. S. W. Coleman, Mr. R. A. Patterson, Dr. H. D. Matthews, Mr. C. E. Stuart, Mr. T. Mildren, Mr. Caleb Cheong, Mr. T. Mitchell, Dr. R. Traill, Mr. James Poon, Mr. M. B. Moffatt, Mr. H. C. Wilkinson, Mr. B. Cheong, Mr. I. Apologies were received from Mr. H. Ching, Mr. H. R. Wells, Mr. Dudley and Mr. Li Chor-chee.

spades, should respond with the original suit.

However, partner was void of diamonds and held three hearts, therefore he could bid diamonds to inform partner that there was a possibility of getting into his hand. Mr. Rau now knew that there was a sure slam in hearts after the bid of three spades. He also knew that his partner did not hold the king of spades. However, the king of clubs would prove just as valuable now that he knew that he could get into partner's hand, therefore he bid six clubs realizing that if his partner did not have the king of clubs, he would simply bid six hearts.

As his partner held the king of clubs, he bid seven clubs and Mr.

WHEELER-WOOLSEY

GUESTS OF ROTARIANS AT
WEEKLY TIFFIN

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, the latter with the inevitable cigar in the corner of his mouth, were the principal guests at the Club tiffin at the Gloucester Building yesterday.

Mr. M. K. Lo presided in the absence of Hon. Dr. S. W. Ts'o, and in a few introductory remarks hoped the two comedians would give them a "howdodo," a "how are you" or "Attah Boy."

Rotarian T. B. Wilson, at whose invitation the two visitors were attending the function, said he had been in the street the previous day and noticed a couple of funny looking birds and promptly invited them to the tiffin. They remarked that they had heard of the tiffin club from George Bernard Shaw, but if the food was good they would come, although they did not make a practice of appearing before the public in person but only on the screen.

Turning to Woolsey he said, "Stand up and make a bow" whereupon with a waggle of the cigar and a shake of the head the elder of the comedians rose to his feet.

"It's a funny thing," he said "but no matter where you go you have to earn your tiffin" (laughter). "It's the same the whole world over. We have been here about two weeks and we heard a great deal about the cold hospitality or the cold social life here in Hongkong and Shanghai, but if this is a sample of the cold hospitality we would like to take it back to Hollywood with us. When I meet my mother I shall tell her that among the greatest times I had was right here in Singapore" (laughter) and again the cigar did a twirl.

The thing I want earnestly to say is thank you very much for asking us here, and I hope we have not been a disappointment. As far as I am concerned I think Bernard Shaw was wrong." (Applause).

Mr. Wheeler also spoke, and thanked the Rotarians for their hospitality.

The Guests.

The guests were as follows—Messrs. Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, and E. W. Duggan, A. L. Caplan, W. K. Way, O. Morgenstern (Shanghai) M. W. Lo Horace Lo, H. Graze, Wong Tong, whoja, (Sourabaya) Kuli Hoon-sun, (Manila) J. B. Trevor, W. A. Stewart, S. E. Cook and S. M. West.

It was announced that an invitation had been received from the Canton Rotary Club asking Hongkong Rotarians to their dinner to be held on May 20 in celebration of their Charter Day. Rotarians were requested to make a special effort to try and attend the function at Canton.

Rotarian Woo, in an appeal for support in connexion with the St. John Ambulance Brigade flag day which is to be held on Saturday next, stated that the Government had forbidden them to hold their prize draw, which means they would have a deficit this year of about $25,000. They had an enormous amount of work to be done in the New Territories and hoped to raise between $10,000 and $15,000 next Saturday.

HAILSHAM'S SPEECH.

LLOYD GEORGE'S SEVERE CRITICISM

London, May 16.
A slashing attack on Lord Hailsham's speech in the House of Lords on May 11 was made by Mr. Lloyd George in a speech at the Women's National Liberal Federation at Scarborough to-day. He declared that the foolish mis-handling of Germany's just armament demands had forced Germany to a frenzy of Hitlerism. Referring to Lord Hailsham's threat of sanctions against Germany, Mr. Lloyd George declared that the sanctions would involve war and added that Lord Hailsham had delivered his speech without asking the permission of the Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin or the Foreign Secretary. It was a monstrous thing to have done, he concluded.—Reuter.

JACK PETERSEN'S WIN IN TWO MINUTES

London, May 16.
Jack Petersen, the British heavy-weight, scored a sensational victory over the German boxer Muller before a crowd of 63,000 to-night. After playing with his opponent's head in the opening stages, Petersen suddenly changed his tactics and whipped in a terrific right that knocked Muller out within two minutes of the opening. The South African boxer, McCorkindale, outpointed Vincent Howard.

RAPID JAPANESE ADVANCE: TIENTSIN PANIC

WAR DEBTS AGAIN
FRESH NEGOTIATIONS COMMENCED
A WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE
(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, May 17.
Britain's war debt to America was the topic of discussion last night when Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, called upon President Roosevelt last night.

Mr. Cordell Hull together with the Director of the Budget and Professor Moley, the President's economic adviser, were present.

It is believed that the visit may be taken to signify that new negotiations for the settlement of the debt question have been started.

Washington, like London, believes that a settlement of the war debt problem is essential to the success of the World Economic Conference and every effort is being made to reach an understanding with dispatch.

U. S. DELEGATION.
Meanwhile, President Roosevelt has issued the names of the principal American delegates to the World Economic Conference. The names called yesterday have been confirmed with the exception of Mr. Bernard Baruch.—Reuter.

FINANCE CRISIS IN BELGIUM
EMERGENCY POWERS BILL
(Special to "Telegraph")

Brussels, May 17.
After a lengthy debate, the Belgian Senate last night passed, by 91 votes to 63, the Emergency Powers Bill, which grants the Cabinet powers for dealing with the financial crisis, including changes in taxation, reductions in expenditure and currency measures.—Reuter.

VEHICULAR FERRY
HOURS OF SERVICE EXTENDED

The Yau-mat Ferry Company, in response to the wishes of a large number of car owners, is again extending the vehicular ferry service, as from tomorrow the 18th instant, when the ferry will leave Hongkong for Kowloon and vice versa every 20 minutes between the hours of 7.20 a.m. and 10 p.m.

The Company hopes to be able to operate the full passenger and vehicular ferry service early next month.

CHINA AND SOVIET
NON-AGGRESSION PACT OFFER

AN IMPORTANT CLAUSE
Moscow, May 17.

An unusual Article which, if signed, will hinder the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway and the maintenance of official relations with Manchukuo, is included in the proposed terms of the Non-Aggression Pact handed by the Chinese Foreign Ministry at Nanking to M. Bogomoloff and forwarded by him to Moscow.

The Article provides for "refusal of any recognition of de jure or de facto situations created by aggression on the part of a third Power.—Reuter."

DIMINISHING H.K. TRADE

HEAVY DECREASE CONTINUES

According to an official report issued by the Statistical Office of the Imports and Export Department, total imports of merchandise into the Colony during the month of April, 1933, amounted to a declared value of $39.8 millions (£2.6 millions) as compared with $61.2 millions (£3.8 millions) in April of 1932, while exports totalled $35.1 millions (£2.3 millions) as against $41.0 millions (£2.7 millions).

For the first four months of 1933, imports totalled $172.7 millions (£11.1 millions) as compared with $231.9 millions (£15.6 millions) in the corresponding period of 1932, while Exports were valued at $140.5 millions (£9.0 millions) as compared with $171.0 millions (£11.5 millions) in the same period.

ATTACK EXPECTED
SPECULATION RUNNING RIFE
PEKING ALARM UNALLAYED
(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

Peking, May 17.
Panic reigns in Tientsin. The populace is convinced that a Japanese attack is imminent and are crowding into the foreign concessions in thousands.

All along the Tangshan-Tientsin section of the railway, a tense situation exists and refugees from the threatened areas are adding to Tientsin's problem.

Until the fall of Tangshan, there remained a hope that the situation would be saved, but immediately the news reached Tientsin, the Chinese began to desert the native city and to pour into the foreign concessions in tremendous numbers.

SERIOUS SITUATION.
The exodus has assumed such serious proportions that the authorities are meeting to discuss measures for the preservation of peace.

On the war fronts, the Japanese are advancing wherever they apply determined pressure, the latest Chinese force to retreat being that of Sung Che-yuan, who has been defending his lines near Heifeng-kow magnificently for weeks.

Further troops are being rushed up in an effort to stem the tide.

TRAIN SERVICE INTERRUPTED
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic News Agency, Ordinance, 1931. Received May 17, 12.55 p.m.)

Peking, May 17.
The Japanese advance has further restricted the Peking-Mukden service, which is now reported to be running no further than Tangku.

Thus communication between Tientsin and the sea remains intact, but there is some speculation as to what will happen if the Japanese advance continues further.

The exodus from Peking continues, amounting to about three thousand daily, while the heavy influx into the foreign concessions at Tientsin is becoming unmanageable.—Reuter.

LUTAI CONCENTRATION.

Peking, May 17.
The Chinese troops began the evacuation of Tangshan on Monday night and are concentrating at Lutai.—Reuter.

KAILAN M. A. ESCAPES.

Tientsin, May 17.
A message from Tangshan states that Manchukuo scouts have been seen from Tangshan and that the taking over of the town is imminent.

No damage has been done to the property or personnel of the Kailan Mining Administration.—Reuter.

CHINESE FALL BACK
Peking, May 17.

All Chinese troops have now evacuated Tangshan and are rapidly withdrawing to the west.

HERR HITLER'S SPEECH
FIRM INSISTENCE ON EQUALITY

Berlin, May 17.
It is learned that Herr Hitler, in his statement to the Reichstag to-day, will emphasize Germany's equality claim, while expressing a desire for peace and readiness to compromise on disarmament consistently with Germany's position and honour as a first-class Power.

The speech, it is understood, will not contain any startling declaration. It will probably be very conciliatory, but very unyielding.

Herr Hitler will insist upon the Germany claim to equality in all matters.—Reuter.

ARSON AT MANCHULI
ANOTHER C.E.R. CLUB GUTTED
NO ARRESTS MADE
(Special to "Telegraph")

Harbin, May 17.
The Chinese Eastern Railway employees' club at Manchuli was burned down yesterday.

The premises were completely gutted and the loss is estimated at 120,000 roubles.

This is the second large C.E.R. club to be burned down in a fortnight. The other was at the other extreme of the railway, at Suifuho. On that occasion arson was merely suspected.

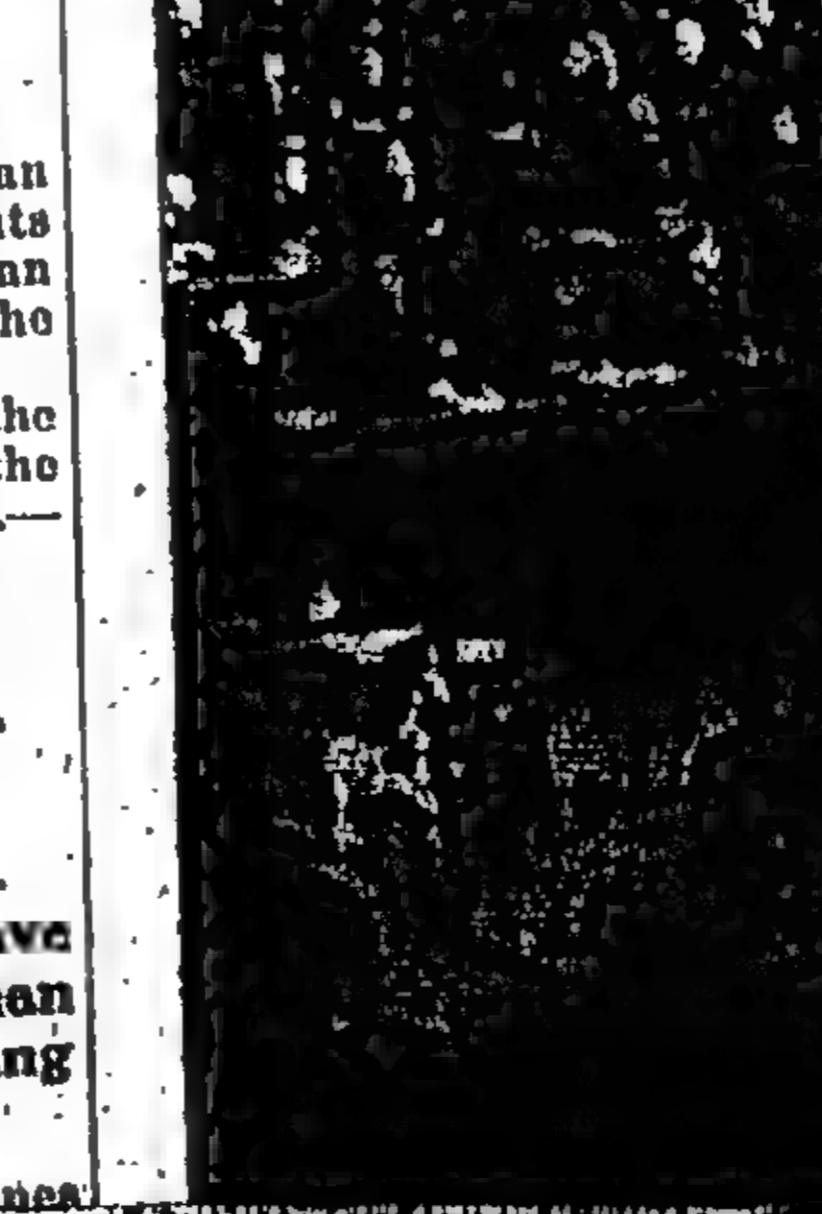

There is no doubt whatever that yesterday's blaze at Manchuli was the result of deliberate arson, but no arrests have been made.—Reuter.

EXPLOSION IN COAL MINE
THREE KILLED AND MANY GASED

London, May 17.
A serious explosion occurred to-day at the West Cannoek Colliery, one of the most famous in England, near Hedsnesford, Stafford.

Over a hundred men were in the pit at the time of the disaster and three of the miners lost their lives.

Many of the remainder were suffering from gas when they were brought to the surface by rescue parties, who did magnificent work.—British Wireless.

TEST OF HITLER'S STATESMANSHIP

FATE OF DISARMAMENT IN BALANCE

EUROPEAN CRISIS

LONDON, MAY 17.
THE VALUE OF THE ROOSEVELT MANIFESTO AS A DECISIVE FACTOR IN THE EUROPEAN CRISIS IS VARYINGLY INTERPRETED IN BRITAIN, ALTHOUGH ITS SPIRIT IS UNANIMOUSLY COMMENDED.

The consensus of opinion among commentators is that Herr Hitler's speech in the Reichstag to-day will decide the fate of the Disarmament Conference and the result hinges upon whether Germany indicates that she is prepared to abandon her claim to retain her long-service army, which is the first condition of any disarmament progress.

Hitler's speech will be regarded abroad as the supreme test of his statesmanship.

BRITAIN AND ROOSEVELT MANIFESTO

The Times declares it to be "the most stirring appeal to the nations yet heard for concerted action in the political and economic spheres jointly."

It is assured, the journal adds, of a wholehearted response in the British Empire, though, the such a response cannot be expected so quickly from the nations nearer the Continental upheavals than are Britain and the United States.

AMERICA'S INTEREST.
The Times regards of the utmost importance, President Roosevelt's re-statement of the readiness of the United States to participate in a Consultative Pact, even if he was unable to commit the United States to armed intervention in defence of a victim of aggression.

The News-Chronicle is more definite. It says that the manifesto immediately ends American isolation and more or less commits the United States to direct intervention in the event of a violation of a new pledge to peace.

APPEAL TO COMMONSENSE.
The Daily Herald refers to the Roosevelt statement as "an appeal to commonsense amidst criminal talk of war."

The Daily Telegraph and the Morning Post are disinclined to interpret the manifesto as a definite departure from the traditional policy of the United States, of non-intervention in Europe.

The Telegraph thinks it may be useful as a damper upon Herr Hitler's speech to-day, but is disappointed at its non-committal attitude.

INTERVENTION ISSUE.

The Post says that America cannot guarantee European peace across the Atlantic and agrees with the Telegraph in stressing Europe's need for a definite assurance that America, in the event of war, would manifest disapproval by definite intervention.

Most of the newspapers are of opinion that the value of President Roosevelt's manifesto depends largely upon its influence in Germany official circles.

BANKRUPTCY THREAT.

Meanwhile, the Financial Times regards the coming meeting of Germany's foreign creditors as significant of nothing less than the pending breakdown of overseas remittances from Germany to her creditors, but observes that more help can be given to future trade by assisting a genuinely distressed debtor than by forcing him into liquidation.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT AND CHINA

INTERPRETATION OF NEW POLICY

RESTRICTION ON TROOPS
(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, May 16.
America's position in China as a consequence of President Roosevelt's dramatic revision of foreign policy is being discussed here.

It is indicated in official quarters that the United States Government is fully aware that the President's sweeping declaration will be interpreted as applying to the United States' own foreign policy.

The proposal that no armed forces shall be sent across the frontier except where arms limitation agreements are violated has stirred up much discussion. It is pointed out that the re-entry of United States Marines into Haiti after withdrawal would apparently constitute a direct crossing of a frontier by troops.

CHINA SITUATION.

The presence of United States soldiers and marines in China are defined by treaty, it is indicated in official quarters that they would not fall within the prohibition suggested by President Roosevelt.

But the question would immediately arise if American units undertook in any way to enlarge the territory they hold as the Japanese did at the beginning of the present warfare.—Reuter.

London, May 16.
A reduction of twopence-halfpenny a gallon in the price of petrol in England takes effect 'as from to-morrow.'

CHINESE SCOFF AT TOKYO REPORT

YOUR CHILDREN.

Books are Real Helps to Mothers.

By Olive Roberts Barton

They say that motherhood is a profession. I'll say it is. A mother must be everything from a doctor to a psychiatrist, as well as a good dietician, steward and even electrician and plumber. She is father-confessor, judge, jury and hangman, healer and yogi.

What price mother! Now she is reading. And thank heaven the public doesn't whisper about her if she brings up her baby by book. I used to have to hide mine. What Dr. Holt or any of his colleagues had to say about regular feeding and modified milk I had to keep a secret between myself and the covers of the books I read.

To-day mothers can come right out in the open, book in hand. It is quite the thing to say, "Dr. Richardson says this," or "Dr. Bartlett says that," or "Dr. Fishbein tells us to do so and so." Quite human to hunt up O'Shea, Sayles or Langdon, or other authors on child health and child understanding. I wonder sometimes if the young mother of to-day realizes that she lives in a truly golden age.

An Aid to Home Nursing

She not only has the advantage of what professional knowledge she seeks in books, but the added advantage of liberty as far as public opinion is concerned, to avail herself freely of what she can find.

A day or so ago a clerk handed me still another book which must be of decided help to mothers. It seems to fill a certain gap left out of most health books on children. Doctors can tell us to do certain things but they cannot say "how" because they aren't able to give a whole course in home nursing. This is a field of its own.

This book, "Amateur Nurse," written by Mary Wright Wheeler, tells how to go about doing things in a sick room for any member of the family, young or old.

I believe that every mother with a family would not only be helped but relieved to have something to turn to besides herself when she has to nurse some member of her family. I always keep handy my book on first-aid.

Preparedness for Illness

Speaking of nursing reminds me: the one thing we do not prepare for is illness. We see that we have supplies for the kitchen, laundry, bed-rooms, the whole house. Then when illness comes along, perhaps in the middle of the night, we have to get the neighbours up to borrow the simplest of sick-room paraphernalia.

The wise mother will keep on hand those articles or simple remedies that will not deteriorate with time. Enamelled and glass-ware will not deteriorate. Rubber goods will stand up much longer than they used to. But even so, hot-water bottles, ice-caps and so on are excellent things for emergencies.

It is merely a suggestion, but it seems logical, does it not? The one thing we are not prepared for usually is sickness. There are people who regard such preparation in much the same light as pacifists regard an army. "Get it ready and trouble comes!" they say. I don't believe that same preparation ever causes trouble. At any rate it is sheer improvidence not to provide for sickness.

FASHION HINTS.Blouses for Spring.

The blouses that go with your new spring suit can make the entire outfit serve many occasions. Have a blouse of lame or other formal material and when the coat is removed the dressy blouse and skirt can well go to tea or even dinner. Silk blouses of less formal varieties make it an ideal street costume.

To Keep Your Hat on

The way to keep a shallow crowned hat on your head in spite of vagrant spring breezes is to tie a bandana handkerchief tightly around your head and then jam the hat on over it.

Toby Wing

Hollywood.—Demure collars are giving Hollywood girls individuality in their spring dresses.

Toby Wing wears a lovely shawl collar on a black crepe dress that is exquisitely tucked in scallops and then embroidered to boot. It stands up around her neck, a little bit like an old-fashioned ruff, and gives her face a flattering frame.

Eliasa Landi, wore a black crepe de chine dress with a triple-decked white pique collar and matching cuffs. She also wore a knitted fez of fine white wool at least six inches high.

Claudette Colbert has several dark dresses with hand-embroidered white organdie collars. The prettiest one she has is an afternoon dress of black crepe with a wateau neck and a little glimpse of hand-flowered white organdie and little puff sleeves of the same organdie embroidery.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XXXI

Three days later Mona faced Mr. Garretson in the Townsend library, that room she loved so deeply. The sun, pouring in through the stained glass windows, touched the slender, black-garbed figure. Mona's hands, restless and nervous, clutched a fine linen handkerchief spasmodically.

The funeral for John Bernard Townsend was over. Rich and poor alike had crowded into the church to pay their last respects. Elizabeth was there with her husband and the eldest of the children. Mrs. Faxon, Mr. Garretson, Mr. Amesbury and Mr. Lawton from the office. Mona's family in a side row were the servants, looking grief-stricken. John Townsend had been a good man, a good employer.

He had contributed to a dozen different charities, sponsored a dozen movements for the good of mankind. But, with all his generosity, he had ignored the rights of his nephew.

Mona knew that he had meant to set all that straight. He had offered to do so to please her but she half-suspected this grudging assent was a cloak to hide gentleness he did not like to show.

Now it was too late!

"It seems horrible to talk about money now," Mona said to the lawyer, "but you must believe me, Mr. Garretson. My husband meant to leave that money to Barry. He told me so. It was his own suggestion. We were both to think things over."

She flushed a trifle, then went

on. "The truth of the matter is, my husband agreed that if I would forget the divorce arrangement he would do the right thing by Barry."

The lawyer nodded. He was thinking he had never seen anyone look so pitifully young, so fragile and desperate. "Did he explain to you what the right thing might be?"

"The right thing?" Mona stared at the man who, hands clasped behind him, was pacing the floor, pausing now and then to straighten the rug with a well-groomed foot.

"Yes, the right thing."

"Why, I don't know. Sign papers, I suppose, so that Barry can have his money."

Mr. Garretson looked at her strangely. "What money, Mona?"

"Why, his own money!"

The man's eyes narrowed. "You mean you believe that Towny was keeping young Barry's own money from him?" His tone incredulous.

Neither observed that he had relapsed into the friendly diminutive by which John Townsend was known among his closest friends. But its use meant one thing. Mr. Garretson was on the defensive.

Mona faltered. "Something like that. It was talked of at the office, you know. Barry used to come there to get money. I knew everybody knew—that he came north to arrange for money to use in buying mining machinery."

"For a worked-out old diamond mine," Mr. Garretson expostulated.

Mona shook her head. "Not worked-out at all. The Empress came from that mine."

"The Empress?" Mr. Garretson gazed at her without understanding.

"That huge diamond. John bought it for me."

At this Mr. Garretson laughed abruptly. "I remember," he nodded. "But let me tell you about Barry's money, as you term it. Under the terms of his father's will Barry's money, what there was of it, was placed in trust. He can touch it only when he is 30. Until that time it remains with his uncle. Or with us. When Barry Townsend came to the office he was merely asking for an advance on what we considered a fair allowance, particularly in view of the fact that he was acting against his uncle's wishes and his own father's wishes by continuing his residence in South America."

There was a pause.

"But Barry's father worked the mine—"

"Granted. But that was different. He amused himself with the mine as well, let us say, an avocation. He had other more profitable interests. He would have been very much opposed to Barry's sinking all his fortune in that mine as he seems bent upon doing."

Mona considered. "Won't you explain to me then just what John could have done to help Barry?"

For answer the lawyer motioned Mona to a chair and sank into the one by the fire.

"Almost anything. Townsend was a very rich man. Few people guessed exactly how rich. He could have signed over half of his fortune or all of it to Barry. But as for Barry's own money, which will be his when he is 30, your husband had no more power over that than I have at this moment. In fact, precisely the same power. I cannot allow Barry, by law, to touch it. He has his allowance. He has always had his allowance and that is that!"

Mona was so stunned that she could not speak for a moment. "But John—John agreed! What did he mean to do when he said he would do the right thing by Barry?"

"That is what I would like to impress upon you. John Townsend agreed, on your behalf, to make Barry Townsend partial heir to his own fortune. This was, of course, not Barry's own at all. He was going to settle $10,000,000 on Barry because he thought it would please you. But this was his own money—not Barry's. Rather more than right by Barry, don't you think?"

Mona's anxious face cleared happily. "Then everything is all right?" she asked.

"Townsend drew the will. Or rather I drew it."

"He expected me to agree!"

Mona exclaimed.

"He expected nothing of you except that you should be happy. He ordered a new will drawn simply to please you. If you preferred to be poorer by $10,000,000 after his death he was agreeable."

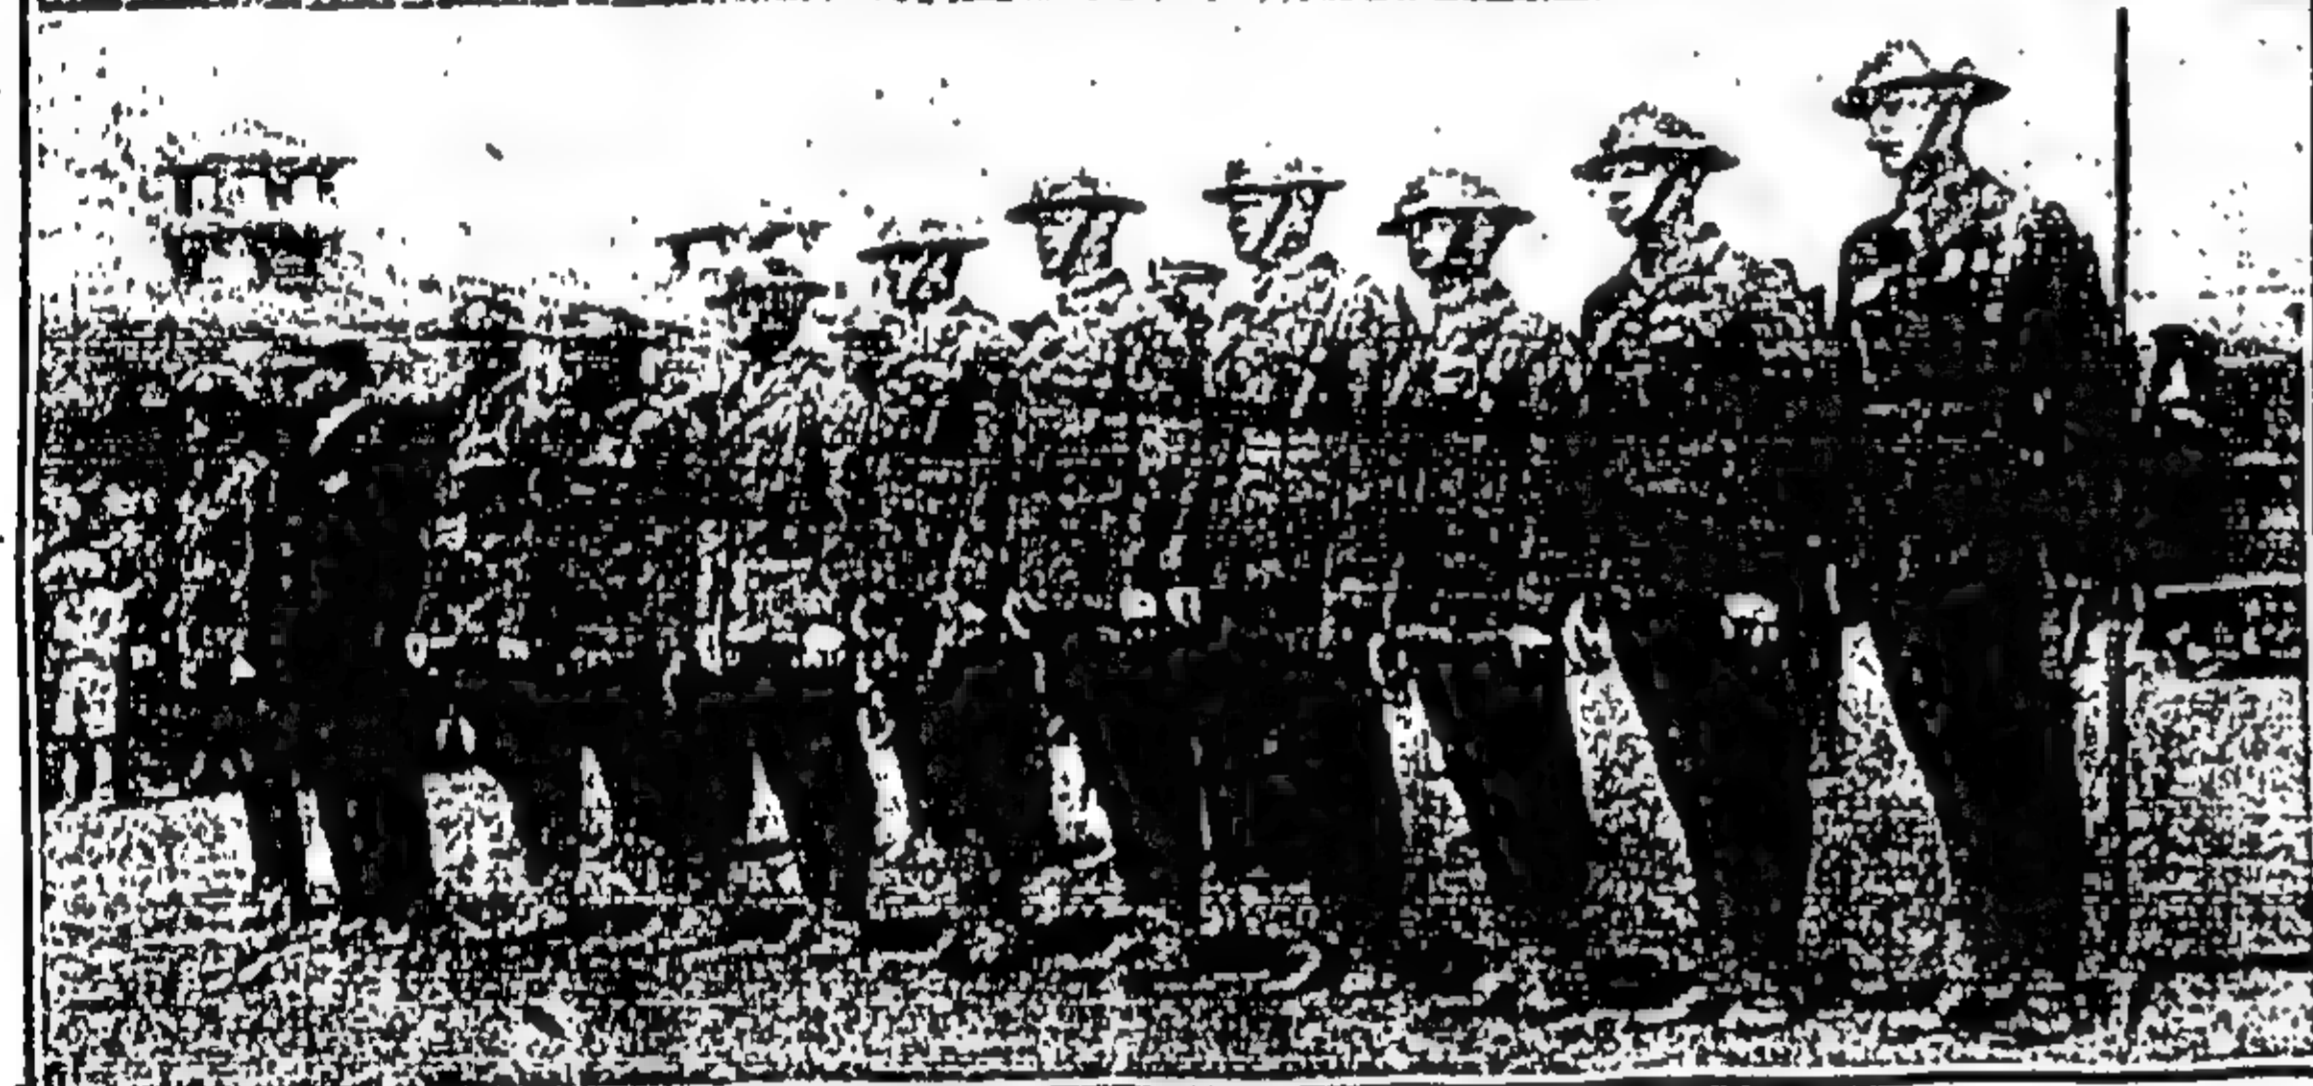

Mona spread her hands and laughed. "I who have never had $10 before that I could spend without feeling guilty! What are $10,000,000 more or less? Then Barry has his money!"

Mr. Garretson recoiled. "Unfortunately, no. Barry does not have the money. Townsend did not sign the will."

"But—!" Mona started. "He wanted it that way!"

The lawyer's voice was dryness itself. "The courts prefer signatures in such cases." His tone became mild again. "My child, matters are as they were. Eliza—"

An impressive ceremony was witnessed last week at the Race Course Shanghai when eight enlisted men of the 4th U. S. Marines were decorated for courage under fire or meritorious service in Nicaragua, while another received a Special Letter of Commendation from the U. S. Secretary of Navy, for rescuing a comrade from drowning. Admiral T. T. Taylor, Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Asiatic Fleet, is shown above pinning the Nicaraguan Gold Medal of Honour and Merit and Diploma on Gunner Sgt. Chester A. Davis. Bottom photo shows the decorated men in the reviewing stand with Admiral Taylor and Lieut. Col. E. P. Moses of the 4th Marines, while the regiment passed in review. The decorated men are, left to right: Gunner Sgt. Chester A. Davis, Sgt. W. S. Le Francois, Sgt. Harry E. Kipp, Cpl. C. D. Synder, Cpl. L. S. Wriston, Cpl. A. J. Billingham, Cpl. R. I. FIRST DAY OF SUMMER—Happy bathers in the sunshine at Finchley open air swimming pool to welcome the first day of summer.

Welcomed by the first really warm day of spring, the annual parade of the S.M.P. Specials last week in Shanghai went off in excellent style. The top photograph shows members of the Specials after they had met on the Bund foreshore. Major F. W. Gerrard, C.I.E. Commissioner, (with hand on hip) was evidently casting an eagle eye for tarnished buttons. The lower picture shows the salute at the Racecourse grandstand. In the extreme left (are Mr. R. G. MacDonald, Deputy Commissioner (left) and Major Gerrard. From this action picture, it can be seen that the Specials marched like veteran soldiers.

Cleveland Nosed Out in 12th Innings

Washington, May 16. Washington Senators and Cleveland engaged in a titanic struggle in an American League baseball match to-day, which the Senators won after a dozen innings.

St. Louis also managed to nose out Boston after eleven innings.

Pittsburgh played havoc with Philadelphia in the National League and Brooklyn nosed out St. Louis. Scores as cabled by Reuter were:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Cincinnati	3	9	0
Boston	6	11	1
St. Louis	5	10	0
Brooklyn	6	12	2
Chicago	1	8	1
New York	4	6	4
Pittsburgh	8	10	3
Philadelphia	4	8	0

(Subr homered for Pittsburgh)

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Washington	11	27	3
Cleveland	10	16	2

(Kubel homered for Washington. There were 12 innings)

Boston	2	9	0
St. Louis	3	13	0

(Eleven innings were played)

Chicago v. Philadelphia and Detroit v. New York matches were postponed on account of rain.

continuously with heavy aerial bombardments.

Concern is growing in the Tientsin area. The situation is growing increasingly tense owing to internal feeling, while some apprehension is felt of possibly serious developments upon the falling back of large bodies of defeated troops.

FENGYUN CAPTURED.

The Japanese have now occupied Fengyun near Tangshan.

Sung Che-yuan's troops, after a stubborn resistance for several days, have now withdrawn from Lungchikwan and Santunying, inside Hailfengku.

It is hoped that General Huang Fu will be able to devise a plan for halting the Japanese advance.

VOLUNTARY RETREAT.

Peking, May 17. The Chinese withdrawal from Tangshan was carried out voluntarily, according to Chinese despatches, the object being to avoid serious disturbance of the area, where large British interests are centred.

The last Chinese soldier left Tangshan at noon yesterday.

In fighting round Fengyun, now occupied by the Japanese, General Oong Chao-yuan's forces suffered four hundred casualties yesterday. The Japanese also suffered heavy losses in street fighting.—Special.

PRINCE AND HIS NEW PLANE

London, May 16. The Prince of Wales to-day flew from Windsor to Cardiff to hold an Investiture of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

It was the first occasion he had made a long flight in his new Vickers Viantra machine.

The monoplane has accommodation for ten persons and has a speed of 160 miles an hour. Sound-proof walls make conversation possible at normal tone and ten parachutes in the cabin roof are released for passengers on touching a button.

The Prince flew back to London to-night to keep a second public engagement.—British Wireless.

STOWAWAY FINED TRIP FROM SINGAPORE TO HONGKONG

A fine of $50 was imposed on B. Ali at the Kowloon Magistracy by Mr. Butters this morning for stowing away from Singapore to Hongkong on the B. I. steamer Tilawa.

It was stated that defendant was found on board by the ship's officers after the vessel had left Singapore, and when questioned by them he said he had gone aboard to look for some friends. He was given the opportunity to find them, but could not discover anybody on the ship who knew him.

WIRELESS WITHOUT A LICENCE NOT RENEWED FOR TWO YEARS

Before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning, Chuk Sui-wing, of No. 59, Pokfulam Road, was summoned for having a radio set without a licence.

The defendant was represented by his mother, who said defendant was away in the country. She knew that defendant took out a licence for the set when he bought it, but did not know if he had a current licence.

Sergeant Ellis stated that it was a big cabinet set, and the P.M.G. asked that a serious view be taken of the case. The defendant had not renewed his licence for two years.

Mr. Schofield imposed a fine of $50.

SUDDEN KNOCKOUT

JACK PETERSEN'S WIN IN TWO MINUTES

London, May 16. Jack Petersen, the British heavyweight, scored a sensational victory over the German boxer Muller before a crowd of 53,000 to-night. After playing with his opponent's head in the opening stages, Petersen suddenly changed his tactics and whipped in a terrific right that knocked Muller out within two minutes of the opening.

The South African boxer, McCordkindale, outpointed Vincent Howard.

For keeping an unregistered motor car, a woman named Choy Kit-ping, of No. 515 Nathan Road, was fined $200 by Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. Defendant denied that the girl was a motorist, stating that she received a monthly wage, but it was given in evidence that although the girl was given $1.50 every month, by her master she had to hand over all the money to her mistress.

The R.M.S. "Empress of Russia" leaves Yokohama this afternoon and is due at Hongkong on the 24th May at 9 a.m.

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET
FIRM

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done: 3,290,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—President Roosevelt's world-wide message inspired confidence and caused stocks to advance from one to five points. Several groups, including sugar and packing issues and so-called "wet" stocks, besides several other specialties made spectacular gains. American Tel. & Tel., Steel and similar stocks were impressively strong and indicated a return of strong investment buying. Shorts in American Tel. & Tel. covered, expecting full dividend to be declared tomorrow.

A NORWEGIAN TRIUMPH

This may seem the wrong heading for the recital of the circumstances of a judgment in favour of Denmark and against Norway by the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague. It is, however, deliberately chosen, because the outstanding significance of the case recently decided is the temper in which it has been conducted by the opposing Governments, and naturally the greater credit is due to the defeated party who, in spite of bitter disappointment at the result, accepts the umpire's verdict loyally. This, in our English phrase, is cricket. It is not necessary to follow all the details of the arguments used on either side. It is enough to say that this is the first case in which the Permanent Court has had to adjudicate upon a question of sovereign rights to territory. Two principles of International Law were in conflict. Denmark claimed the whole of Greenland on the basis of ancient treaty and modern agreement. Norway invoked the doctrine of "res nullius." Some of her fishermen had formed rough settlements upon an unoccupied part of the bleak coast line, and finally her Government claimed the right to fly the Norwegian flag and arrange for the administration of justice along this part of East Greenland. Feelings began to run high in both countries; but very wisely and properly their Governments decided to have the dispute settled for them by the impartial judgment of the World Court, which the League of Nations had established. By twelve votes to two the Court rejected the submissions of Norway and accepted those of Denmark. Without hesitation or delay M. Mowinkel, the Prime Minister of Norway, expressed the readiness of his country to abide by the decision so adverse to its hopes. Even more remarkable perhaps was the prompt exchange of telegrams between the Kings of Norway and Denmark, the one congratulating, the other condoling with, his brother—both determined that, in spite of their differences, the existing good relations between their respective countries should be strengthened rather than diminished. The moral of the whole affair is so obvious that it hardly needs to be recorded. The League of Nations has been crossing rough water of late. Its enemies have been rejoicing over its difficulties and even venturing to prophesy its complete failure. Its friends sometimes felt bewildered about its future. In an hour of comparative gloom, comes this striking instance of complete success. In pre-League days, vituperation and violence were the recognised means of settling disputes between nations. To-day the League spirit has inspired two small but by no means unimportant nations to settle their quarrel by reason and mutual goodwill. Unfortunately it is difficult to accept the event, in these days of crisis, as a harbinger of present-day tendencies. The political situation in Europe is severely strained. When one examines the tone of the relations between Rome and Belgrade, between revisionist Hungary and the Little Entente, between Germany and France, one cannot look to further developments without some feeling of alarm. France is faced by Germany in the throes of an extreme Nationalist rising. President Roosevelt has made a magnificent effort, in his historic announcement yesterday abandoning, probably for ever, America's traditional policy of isolation, to lessen the growing distrust. It needs, however, the utmost tact and adjustments of viewpoint if new combustible material is not to be accumulated. Herr Hitler holds the key to the entire problem. A forecast of the statement which he is to make in the Reichstag to-day declares that while he will emphasise Germany's claims to equality, the general tone will be conciliatory. It is to be hoped that the belief will not prove unfounded. President Roosevelt has placed all his cards upon the table. Surely the time has come for Herr Hitler to make a constructive gesture.

How Mythology is Formed

Savage tribes in the jungles of South America worship the image of a white man in a silk hat and frock coat. Explorers have collected many carved wooden staffs bearing this odd image; a white man in old-fashioned dress, often carved with genuine skill, with minor details of costume faithfully rendered. Medicine men used such staffs extensively, believing that all manner of diseases could be cured with them. A long investigation has finally produced an explanation. More than 200 years ago a Scotch colony was settled on the Gulf of San Blas. William Patterson was the leading spirit in the venture. He was a skilled and conscientious physician, and worked many cures among his barbaric native neighbours. As a result, the simple savages canonized him when he died—or, rather, raised him to a position of godhood. Members of his own race have long since forgotten all about him, but he remains to-day a potent legend in the distant jungles. This is as unusual a kind of fame as any white man ever attained; and it leads one into fruitless but interesting speculation about the origins of other, more widely-known gods of old days, because it sheds such a revealing light on the way in which primitive people form their myths. When we first learn of myths, most of us wonder how people could be so inventive; the answer, apparently, being that they aren't. Myths aren't invented; they are built up unconsciously about frameworks of fact. In a world which has problems enough of its own this is of very small importance. But it is interesting.

Children and the Cinemas

Recently we commented on the need for a more desirable type of cinema film for children. But a report by Dr. Gross, the military physician at Hauppstadt, indicates a more important issue. He declares, as a result of a questionnaire, that the cinema is injurious to the health and minds of children. In his quest for information, Dr. Gross received 500 replies from children whose ages ranged from 11 to 14 years. Sixty children declared they never go to a cinema. Sixty nine per cent. complained of visual fatigue, following cinema attendance. The boys appeared more devoted to the cinema than the girls, one lad stating

THE MODERN PROBLEM.

BEAUTY OR BRAINS?

By LIONEL HALE

Here is a story with a moral bluish. An officer in the Chinese army (so it is reported) was found by his brother officers on the verge of blowing his brains out. When, amicably or by force, they had dissuaded him, they asked the natural question "Why?" A large tear rolled down his impassive cheek and he replied "Because I am ugly, and life is insupportable for an ugly man."

Ugliness may seem at first sight to be a frivolous reason for so very unpleasant, so very final a thing as suicide. But the more usual reasons for suicide (if so unreasonable a thing can be said to have reasons) have much less to commend them than ugliness has. Financial troubles or domestic worries—quarrels with my bank manager or my wife—will not drive me to despair, because there are remedies for them. Troubles of that sort may easily disappear. Bank managers, and even wives, may relent. It would be shortsighted not to wait.

NOSES NEVER DISAPPEAR.

But ugliness is irredeemable, and to be ugly is to remain ugly. Overdrafts often disappear, but noses never.

It must not be thought that I am excusing, for reasons of ugliness, that very ugly thing suicide. There is no excuse for suicide, because there is no redress. It is unforgivable, because there is nobody left to forgive. But I see what was in the mind of that Chinese officer. He could never be beautiful, and if he could not be beautiful he would not have a Roman nose he would die a Roman death.

But observe how old-fashioned he is! In the twentieth century he actually cares for good looks! But we up-to-date moderns have ceased to care for them. We up-to-date moderns no longer worship personal beauty. I have yet to discover what we up-to-date moderns do care for, but it certainly isn't that. Old gentlemen in clubs tell me (and I always listen attentively to old gentlemen in clubs) that there are no beautiful women to-day. The old gentlemen, when they were young gentlemen, stood on chairs to see Lily Langtry, they that he attended the cinema six times a week! As many as 220 testified that they dreamed at night following a visit to the cinema and in 69 per cent. of these cases the dreams were nightmares. The majority, with the refreshing candour of children, admitted they learned nothing through the films, while some, with equal naivety said they learned American slang. Practically no evidence was adduced revealing any mental or moral benefits to be obtained from films, and this surely is one of the most serious accusations the cinema industry has to face. There is also a big onus on the parents. If only from the health point of view, it would seem that children should not be allowed to attend the cinemas more than once a week. There is sufficient evidence to suggest that too frequent attendance plays a part in undermining the health.

...a child specialist says she has a perfectly marvelous destructive course.

The Very Idea!

COMING TO OUR CENSORS

By Eddie Kelly, Last Say.

A film reviewer in a local contemporary complains that there's not enough censorship in sex films.

He thinks that the Hongkong censors are so busy plying the scissors on gangster films that they haven't time to waste on mere osculations.

Personally, we think it would be a censorious idea if they didn't stop at films.

We're all in favour of letting the censors expand their activities, so that people outside the film world may have a chance of witnessing this great power for good at work.

To save the time of the censors we have started on some of the nursery rhymes, which have now been thoroughly refined, distilled, altered, muzzled and made respectable on the lines suggested by our contemporary.

Take, for instance, "Mary Had a Little Lamb." It fairly reeks with suggestiveness. A film comes to our check as we think of the hideous suggestions contained in the last line.

Here our revised rhyme: Mary had a little lamb as white as snow. And everywhere that Mary went. With the exception of bathrooms, bedrooms, public telephones, and bathing sheds, that lamb was sure to go.

Next, take "Humpty Dumpty." This is a most seditious rhyme, alleging, as it does, a condition of serious inefficiency in the armed forces of His Majesty the King. More than this, the verse deals with a character of the utmost depravity. We are told in the first line that the character "sat on a wall."

Why did he sit on a wall? Why do you sit on walls? That man Humpty Dumpty wasn't on the wall for any good purpose. No-body ever is. What was it the wall of? And who saw him sitting on the wall? Why, we repeat, did he sit on the wall at all. If you think what we think, we will delete the word "wall."

The third line is rankly seditious on the face of it. It is a gratuitous insult to the Boy Scout movement, to the South Wales Borderers, the Royal Navy, and the Hongkong Government.

HUSH-A-BYE BABY.

Gross indecency. The first two lines indicate the depravity of modern nursery rhymes.

Hush-a-bye Baby.

On the Tree Top. The statement that babies are to be found, like this, on tree tops, can only have a pernicious effect on the young minds of to-day. This is no time for mock modesty or for mingling words. The whole rhyme must be modified as follows:

Hush a bye Baby.

Under the gooseberry bush....

"Old Mother Hubbard" will have to be banned. The suggestion that the cupboard was bare is one that cannot be overlooked. This must be stamped out. We can have no nudity in this Colony.

Simple Simon. We were in two minds about "Simple Simon." However, the publishers have agreed to delete certain offending passages so we agreed to pass it.

The original verse read:

Simple Simon, met a plemman

Going to the fair

Said Simple Simon to the

Plemman

"Let Me taste your ware."

The first line, with the exception of the words "Simple" and "ple" is passable. But the second line must be deleted altogether. The more fact that this Simon person was going to meet a blonde woman is sufficient to contaminate the minds of our youthful readers. Third line is censored in accordance with the ruling made in respect to the first line.

The word "taste" in the fourth line is objectionable. To have a "taste" means nothing more, or less than indulgence in alcoholic stimulants, and this is to be deplored.

The corrected verse reads as follows

Simon met a man

Going to

Said Simon to the

Let me your ware

The most vulgar work we have ever had to deal with is a depraved thing called "Three Blind Mice."

The third stanza is terrible.

"They all ran after the farmer's wife!" Tut! Tut! Tut! Words fall us.

The next line is even worse.

"She Cut Off Their Tails With A Carving Knife."

This is terrible, and has been referred to the S.P. O.A.

The whole work is banned.

AMERICA CHALLENGES WORLD TO ACTION

"THIS IS ALMOST AN HISTORIC DAY"

MEANING OF THE STATEMENT

LONDON, MAY 16. "THIS IS ALMOST AN HISTORIC DAY. AMERICA HAS BOLDLY AND OPENLY CUT HER MOORINGS AND LAUNCHED HERSELF IN FULL SAIL WITH COURAGE AND FINE DETERMINATION INTO NEW WATERS."

This was the Prime Minister's happily-phrased interpretation of President Roosevelt's world appeal and statement of policy. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald was addressing the Pilgrim's Club dinner in London to-night.

"Henceforth, 'he said, 'America, by her own declaration cannot be indifferent to anything that concerns the peace of the world.'"

WORLDWIDE NON-AGGRESSION PACT

London, May 17. When President Roosevelt had addressed to the rulers of all countries participating in the Disarmament or Economic Conference, a Foreign office spokesman said that although the hour of arrival precludes an official British comment to-night, no doubt can exist that the spirit of the statement will meet with the warmest approval in this country, and that the proposals will be studied with a genuine desire to co-operate effectively in obtaining the fulfilment of the President's hope "that peace may be assured through practical measures of disarmament and that all of us may carry to victory our common struggle against economic chaos."

QUICK ACTION.

In his message, the President points out that nations have, for this purpose, called two great world conferences and upon the decisions reached, the future of the whole world depends. "The Economic Conference will meet soon and must come to its conclusions quickly. The world cannot await deliberations long delayed. "The Conference must establish order in the place of the present chaos by the stabilization of currencies, by freeing the flow of world trade and by international action to raise the price levels. "It must, in short, supplement individual domestic programmes for economic recovery by wise and considered international action."

CONFUSED PURPOSES.

As for the Disarmament Conference, the President says that confused purposes still clash dangerously, and a duty lies in bringing practical results through concerted action. "I believe that an overwhelming majority of people feel obliged to obtain excessive armaments because they fear some act of aggression against them and not because they themselves seek to be aggressors. There is a justification for this fear. Modern weapons of offence are vastly stronger than modern weapons of defence."

THREE STEPS.

If all nations will agree wholly to eliminate both the possession and the use of the weapons which make possible successful attacks, defence automatically will become impracticable and the defence of every nation will become secure. There are three steps to be taken upon the present discussion. The first is to take at once the definite step towards this objective, as broadly outlined in the Donald Plan.

The second is to agree upon the procedure for taking the following steps. The third is to agree that while the first and following steps are taken, no nation shall increase its existing armaments and above the limitations of obligations.

AND A FOURTH.

At the peace of the world be assured during the whole of disarmament and I propose a fourth step, present with and wholly dependent upon the fulfilment of these proposals, and subject to treaty rights, namely, that all nations of world should enter into a solemn and definite re-affirm the obligations they have assumed to limit and reduce their armaments, and, provided these obligations are faithfully executed by all the signatory powers, individually agree that they will send no armed forces of whatsoever a nature across their frontiers."

POLICY INTO ACTION.

The President adds that if any strong nation refuses to join with genuine sincerity in these concerted efforts for political and economic peace, the civilized world will know where the responsibility for failure lies.

He urges all nations to translate their professed policies into action—British Wireless.

SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

President Explains His Policy

Washington, May 16. President Roosevelt followed his world-wide appeal for disarmament, coupled with an undertaking to enter into a Consultative Pact, by a special Message to Congress. He advised Congress that he had proposed a World Non-Aggression Pact because it had become increasingly evident that the assurance of world political and economic peace and stability was threatened by selfish and short-sighted policies, actions and threats of action.

The deep-rooted desire of Americans for better living conditions and the avoidance of war was shared by the mass of humanity in every country.

An means to this end, he had stressed the practical necessity of reducing armaments.

In his Message, President Roosevelt also emphasises that it is high time very nation understood that the invasion of any other nation or the destruction of national sovereignty could only be prevented by the complete elimination of the weapons that make such a course possible. The elimination will make the little nation relatively more secure against the great nation.

Large armies, he goes on, are responsible, more than any other factor, for government budget deficits and threatened bankruptcy. Disarmament is the only way to prevent invasion.

Americans realise that weapons of offence are needed only if other nations possess them. They will freely give them up if all the nations in the world do likewise.—Reuter.

KNITTING FACTORY SUED

JUDGMENTS FOR $4,000. MADE

Four claims for $1000. each under a promissory note and three Chinese borrowing notes were successfully made against the Tai Hing Knitting Factory, of Kowloon Island Lot 1527, Lo Lung Hang, Kowloon, before Mr. Justice Lindall this morning. Plaintiff in regard to the promissory note was Lo Lan-shi, of 277, Hennessy Road, who was presented by Mr. Horacio Lo. Two other claims were by Chung Kam-kul, of 277, Hennessy Road, the fourth being by Lo Chan-shi, of 49, Jervois Street. Mr. F. C. E. Leslie Leonard McGrath, an American sailor, appeared before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with charges brought by Sub-Inspector McLellan. The Inspector informed the Court that defendant would be dealt with departmentally, and the nature of the charges were, therefore, not divulged. The accused was discharged.

CHARTERED BANK'S LOSS

FORMER H.K. MANAGER PASSES AWAY

OCTOGENARIAN'S CAREER

London, May 16. The death is announced, at the age of 82, of Mr. Thomas Henderson Whitehead, a former Hongkong bank manager.

Mr. Whitehead, began his business career on the staff of the Chartered Bank of India in London in 1873. He started on foreign service eleven years later and between 1874 and 1902 was stationed in India, Ceylon, Singapore, Saigon, Haiphong, Hongkong, Manila, China, Japan, Canada, Mexico and America.

He was appointed manager of the Hongkong office of the Chartered Bank in 1883, and was in addition Superintendent of the Far Eastern branches from 1893. He was appointed London manager in 1902.

POLITICAL INTERESTS.

Widely travelled, Mr. Whitehead four times encircled the world, and on arrival at St. Petersburg from Vladivostok in 1900, was interviewed by the Foreign Minister at his request.

The late Mr. Whitehead was prominently identified with political affairs in the Far East and on October 24 and 25, 1895 despatched the historic telegram to the Times regarding Russia's secret arrangement with China for the occupation of Port Arthur, Manchuria.

He was a member of a special mission in 1900 to interview the late Mr. Pierpont Morgan, President William McKinley, President Porfirio Diaz of Mexico, Ministers Tsung Li and Ya Men of the Peking Foreign Office, Viceroy Li Hung-chang of Tientsin and Judge W. H. Taft, Governor of the Philippines.

ON LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

He was offered the appointment of Financial Adviser to the Imperial Chinese Government in 1900 and the offer was renewed by the President of the Republic in 1913.

His activities in Hongkong were multifarious. He served on the Legislative Council as representative of the Chamber of Commerce from 1890-1902, and was a mem-

EUROPEAN HOUSE ROBBED

THREE MONTHS' GAOL SENTENCE

Ng Mak-ching was charged before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with stealing silver ware the property of Mr. W. L. Walker, from No. 63, Mt. Parish, and, alternatively with receiving.

The articles stolen included a silver drinking cup, five service rings, a silver egg cup, a silver match box, a silver sugar basin, a silver cream jug and other articles to a value of $79.

Sergeant O'Donovan said defendant tried to dispose of the silver ware in opium divans, but the articles were not accepted as they had some inscriptions in English on them. Property to the value of $54 was not recovered.

The defendant admitted previous convictions, and was sentenced to three months hard labour.

ber of the Executive Council in 1902. He was a Justice of the Peace for 18 years, and was entrusted with a petition from the ratepayers of Hongkong to the Imperial Parliament praying for constitutional reform in municipal affairs in 1896.

OVERSEAS BANKS.

He helped to found the British Overseas Banks' Association and was its first chairman in 1917. He was an Hon. Vice-President of the Bankers' Institute, the Boy Scouts' Association and the Burns Federation, whilst he was a Life Governor of the Royal Scottish Corporation, a Governor of Christ's Hospital and a Life Fellow of the Royal Empire Society. He was also a member of the committee of the China Association.

He was extremely generous and gifted bursaries to the schools in the parish of Dunblane where he was born. He also endowed beds in the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh, Perth and Stirling.

AIDS BOY SCOUTS.

Since 1926 he assisted in Empire migration, largely in connexion with Boy Scouts. Through this scheme the Dominions Governments share the expense of agricultural scholarships for two years' training in the farming colleges.

Among his recreations were tennis, running, rowing, polo, and some big-game shooting.

Mr. Whitehead was unmarried.—Reuter.

MALAYAN CHAMPIONSHIP WON and British Record Broken with the help of PHOSFERINE

CHAMPION
OOI-LEONG TEIK writes:
"It is with the greatest pleasure that I write to testify to the benefits I have received by taking Phosferine during my training for the 1931 Malayan Weight-Lifting Championships.
As I had to reduce some seven or eight pounds off my normal bodyweight in order to enable me to compete in the 9-stone class, I had to go into very strenuous training, and with the help of Phosferine, I not only won the championship of that class, but also the Individual Championship, and, in addition, I broke a British Record.
I therefore have no hesitation in recommending Phosferine to any physical culturist or athlete, whether he be in ordinary training or preparing for a competition, as it

SURREY SURPRISE GLOUCESTER

WEST INDIES FIRST WIN

Sussex, Gloucester and Middlesex lost their 100 percent records in the County Cricket championship as a result of the programme concluded to-day, leaving Lancashire, who thoroughly trounced Middlesex to enjoy the distinction alone.

Surrey, Notts and Kent recorded their first outright victories of the season, and the West Indies enjoyed their initial win of the tour, against Essex.

The West Indies followed up a rather poor batting display in the first visit to the wicket with an excellent knock of 370 for six declared. Da Costa reached his century before the closure was applied.

Martindale shared the honours, dismissing Essex in their first innings for 86. To accomplish this he captured eight wickets for 32, the best bowling achievement of the team to date.

"Patsy" Hendren was in his gayest and most forceful mood against the Lancashire bowlers, but a remarkable effort went unrewarded. Hendren actually went through the innings to score 162 not out in a total of 299. Lancashire topped this aggregate thanks somewhat more consistent batting, Watson heading the individual efforts with 139 and Iddon assisting with 98.

MAYER UNPLAYABLE.
Mayer proved himself unplayable against Hampshire when Warwick won with ease. The bowler bagged a total of 12 wickets for 82 runs in the course of the match, Hampshire after two visits to the wicket failing to reach Warwick's score of 315. Kilner and Wyatt were chiefly responsible for this score, Kilner hitting up 102 and the former Test captain being unlucky to lose his wicket after scoring 90.

John Langridge helped himself to another century for Essex against Glamorgan, but the Welsh team staved off defeat by aggregating 613 for the two innings. Sussex tried hard to force the issue by closing their innings at 304 for 8 (Langridge 140), but they had to remain content with the consolation prize of first innings points.

FREEMAN AGAIN.
Kent owed their narrow success against Somerset to A. P. Freeman, who came along at a critical time with some typical bowling which

BORDERERS MAY YET BECOME THE CHAMPIONS

HEAD FOOTBALL TABLE

TO-DAY'S VITAL MATCH

The South Wales Borderers, thanks to a decision of the Football Council, following a precedent established in connexion with other matches, have been placed directly in the running for the First Division championship of football league.

Yesterday it was decided that their game with the Police played last month should carry with it four points. This brings the Borderers programme to a finish and leaves them at the head of the table on level pegging with the Artillery, but enjoying a superior goal average.

If South China lose this afternoon to St. Joseph's in the last league game of the season, the Borderers will meet the R.A. for the championship. If the Chinese draw, they and the Artillery and Borderers will play off a triangular tournament for the title.

One the other hand, if South China capture both points to-day, as they should, they will win the championship leaving the Borderers runners-up.

LEAGUE TABLE.

The amended league table, consequent on the Football Council's decision last night and the Club v Athletic match yesterday is appended:

CHARITY FOOTBALL.

A charity football match has been arranged for next Saturday in aid of the recently formed Children's Playgrounds Association. The contesting teams will be the Combined Services and the Combined Chinese.

The match will be played on the Hongkong Football Club ground at Happy Valley, and is timed to commence at 4.20 p.m.

The following team and reserves have been selected to represent the Combined Services—Gnr. Combe (Royal Artillery); Gnr. Allen (Royal Artillery) and L/C Mullane (South Wales Borderers), capt.; Marine Davey (Royal Marines), Gnr. Pardee (Royal Artillery) and Pte. Pedmore (South Wales Borderers); Pte. Baldry (Lincoln), L. S. A. Usher (Royal Navy), A. B. Purkins (Royal Navy), L/C Ridley (Lincoln) and Gnr. Seal (Royal Artillery).

Reserves:—Pte. Johnson, Pte. Morrison, Cpl. Underwood, Pte. Mathias and Pte. Duncan (South Wales Borderers), Stoker Reed (Royal Navy), Cpl. Ash, L/C Cork and L/C Harding (Lincoln).

FOOTBALL RULES.

Proposed amendments and additions to existing rules were drafted at a meeting of the Hongkong Football Association Council last evening, and these will be put before the forthcoming annual general meeting.

The financial side of the season's activities was also reported upon.

It was mentioned that a team from the Philippines Amateur Athletic Federation would be arriving here towards the end of this month or early in June, and arrangements were discussed for a game with the visitors.

CLUB, EARN POINT IN LAST MATCH

Wasted Chances to Beat the Athletic

A draw was a fair result in yesterday's First Division football match between the Club and Chinese Athletic, when the teams shared four goals.

Nevertheless, the Club had two magnificent chances of snatching both points in the closing stages, but Williams was hasty in his shooting and ballooned over the bar.

This game saw the Club complete their fixtures for the season an achievement shared only by the Artillery, Borderers, Navy and South China.

The Athletic yesterday showed infinitely better idea of team work, and in contrast the Club, and in particular the forward line, relied mainly on individual effort.

Nevertheless the exchanges were evenly distributed. Williams put the Club ahead but Mak So replied before the interval and the Athletic went into the lead shortly after the restart, when Au King-fung neatly placed the ball in the net.

A clever piece of work by E. Strango culminated in the scores again being levelled, and the Club, by this time enjoying the greater share of the attack, and giving the Chinese defence some really anxious moments, should certainly have obtained a deciding goal.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

To the casual observer, Laurel Street looked like one of the nicest streets in the middle-class suburb in which it was located. But trouble broke on the night of June 13. And that trouble was what the film, commencing to-day at the Queen's Theatre and entitled "The Night of June 13," is all about.

The film is an exciting melodrama, culminating in an unusual courtroom scene, with Olive Brook, as John Curry, newly convicted of murdering his wife. It features fine performances by Brook, by Mary Boland as a nosy neighbour, by Charles Ruggles as her husband, by Charley Grapowin, by Lila Lee as the innocent cause of all the trouble, by Adrienne Allen as Curry's neurotic wife and by Gene Raymond and France Dee as two young lovers. It tells a strange story of commonplace people, and tells it uncommonly well.

"Yes, Mr. Brown"

It was Nicky Baumann's ambition to become Mr. Brown's partner so that the firm should in future be known as Brown & Baumann. Nicky managed the firm's Vienna factory, and was daily expecting a visit from the chief. To that end he instructed the staff in the importance of observing the courtesies and honours of the occasion. Mr. Brown's enquiries should always be answered with "Yes, Mr. Brown." Brown was delighted with his reception, and he wondered at the musical refrain he did not hear an eyelid. Things might have gone smoothly if Nicky had not squabbled with his wife, Clara. Then he should not have had the riotous fun which followed a dinner party where Nicky's secretary played the part of Mrs. Baumann and Clara posed as the secretary. A merry, tuneful mix-up, according to Jack Buchanan many opportunities. "Yes, Mr. Brown," is good entertainment.

"Sherlock Holmes"

In "Sherlock Holmes," the Fox Film showing at the Oriental Theatre on Friday and Saturday, the great detective, portrayed by Clive Brook, accomplishes the end of alien criminal rule in England and even the score with his ancient enemy Moriarty.

While the character of "Sherlock Holmes" is preserved, the story prepared for the screen by Bertram Milhauser for Fox Films is new. It is based on one of Conan Doyle's most fascinating tales and William K. Howard, who directed the picture, is said to have given the production both speed and polish, making Holmes a whimsical and ironical personality.

"Red Dust"

After being in preparation for nearly a year, the long awaited screen version of Wilson Collison's play, "Red Dust," comes next Sunday to the Queen's Theatre with Clark Gable and Jean Harlow co-stars.

In one of the most powerful roles of his career, Gable is cast as Dennis Carson, brutal overlord of a rubber plantation in Indo-China, who becomes the centre of a dramatic love triangle. Miss Harlow portrays the seductive Vantine, who makes regular trips up the river from Saigon to visit the rubber plantations. Gene Raymond is seen as Gary Willis, young French engineer who is fevered by his marital life. Mary Astor plays his wife, who comes into the tropics with a lot of pretensions that are soon lost.

Many strangely varied characters are thrown together in a fierce counterpoint of dramatic action. The struggles with the elements of wind, dust and rain storms provide a continual menace to the lives of all concerned.

SLIGHT COLLISION.

AMBULANCE INVOLVED WITH MR. A. L. SHIELDS' CAR

When entering Stubbs Road from Barker Road, shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning, a St. John Ambulance Brigade vehicle collided with Mr. A. L. Shields' car, in charge of his Chinese chauffeur, and proceeding down Stubbs Road from Magazine Gap.

Both drivers made an attempt to avert the collision. The ambulance and private car escaped with minor damage.

No-one was injured.

DEATH OF POPULAR LOCAL SPORTSMAN

MR. H. M. TALATI

His many friends in the Colony, particularly in sporting and Scouting circles, will learn with extreme regret of the death of Mr. Burjor M. Talati, B.A. (Hongkong Univ.), at Bombay yesterday, following an operation. He was only 26 years of age.

The only son of Mr. M. P. Talati, J.P., who is in Hongkong, and Mrs. Talati, who is at present in Bombay, the deceased was lately employed in India as a representative of Messrs. Butterfield and Swire in the sugar business. He was educated at St. Joseph's College, Hongkong, and later became Scoutmaster of the College Troop. He graduated at the Hongkong University. He was also a member of the V.R.C., and was a swimmer of no mean ability. Deceased was popular in a very wide circle, and his untimely death will be greatly mourned.

Much sympathy will be extended to the bereaved parents in the great loss they have been called upon to bear.

LOVE OR MONEY?

both is remembered in the will. You, needless to say, are remembered. Save for a few small legacies to the servants and others, you receive the bulk of the estate."

She had automatically expected that. If he had anticipated surprise or delight, Mr. Garretson was mistaken.

"Barry was not remembered?" the girl repeated.

"Barry receives one dollar." "Then," Mona said eagerly, "all that needs to be done is for me to sign over $10,000,000 to Barry! It's as plain as day. John wished it. He said he would do anything to make me happy. Ten millions is his own figure, isn't it? In the unsigned will?" She ran to the desk searching for paper, for pen.

"Hold on, hold on! What are you going to do?" "I don't know. You'll have to do it. Draw up the paper, whatever is necessary, so that from today, from now Barry has that money! I'll sign it. John wished it, too."

"My child," Mr. Garretson spoke to her gently. "It isn't as simple as that." He shook his head. "Even if you were free to give away $10,000,000 it couldn't be done by a scratch of the pen. But you are not free! The latest will, the one upon which the court will act, deprives you of the right to make such a gift."

"I cannot give it to Barry?"

"You cannot give it to anyone. You simply have the use of the fortune. If you marry again the fortune will not be yours! You are a wealthy woman, my child. That is, you are a wealthy widow. Marry again and you automatically enrich half a dozen charitable institutions. The Sailors' Home. Hospital for Cancer. An orphanage in the Bronx. And—ah, yes—a snake farm in Brazil!"

"Snake farm?" "An institution, rather. You see, Towny was bitten by a snake once, while in Brazil. Only antivenom from this snake farm at Sao Paulo could have saved his life. Naturally, since the place gave him some of the best years of his existence, he had a feeling of regard for it."

"But," Mona went on, dismissing the snake farm, "I can't marry again, and retain the fortune? Did John suppose that my first thought would be marriage? How could he?"

"Not yours, perhaps. But a wealthy young widow is always besieged by offers. Particularly when she is attractive."

"Besieged by offers? That does not mean that she has to accept!"

Mr. Garretson was grave in his answer. "Mona," he said, "I think that the condition was

When Baby Is FRACTIONAL

You can be sure that his stomach and bowels need attention. Give him a few doses of Baby's Own Tablets and then note what a bright and happy baby you have once more. The great advantage about Baby's Own Tablets is their pleasant, sweet taste. Children like to take them, and thus the upset which accompanies the administration of ordinary crude remedies such as castor oil, salts, senna, is avoided.

Baby's Own Tablets are a reliable juvenile health safeguard for the youngest baby and for children up to about seven or eight. The formula is that of a highly-qualified medical practitioner with special experience in children's ailments.

For stomach and bowel troubles, ailments resulting from constipation or faulty digestion, for worms and diarrhoea, these tablets are splendidly and speedily efficacious. For the troubles and pains of the teething period Baby's Own bring miraculous relief, though they are guaranteed to contain neither opiate nor narcotic of any kind. All wise parents keep Baby's Own Tablets handy.

simply a sort of protest against young Barry. Towny's last, you know. For just after your marriage, Barry wrote to his uncle that you, Towny's wife, were the young woman of whom he had spoken. Barry told Towny in fact that he wanted to marry you. And from various indications, Towny believed that you were in love with Barry.

"I am," Mona said slowly. "And now what can I do?" (To be continued.)

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

I hope that all of my readers are by now thoroughly familiar with the original three forcing bid in the one-over-one system. It is true that it does not arise very often, but when it does, what a thrill it will give you to arrive easily and successfully at that grand slam!

Grand slams are to-day worth a lot of points under the new scoring and you do not want to miss them. The three bid entirely eliminates the duplication of values.

Here is one that was played by John Rau and his partner the other day at Deal, N. J. You will remember Mr. Rau and his partner, William Barrett, were the two young boys who made such a name for themselves a few years ago by carrying away a national championship before they were 21 years of age. And to prove that it wasn't entirely luck, these two boys have continued to make a remarkable tournament record for themselves.

If you are the dealer on this hand, you know that if your partner holds the ace of spades, it is a sure slam in hearts. Mr. Rau, in the South, opened the bidding with three hearts.

This is the forcing bid which says, "Partner, I am not interested in whether or not you hold hearts. I want definite information regarding your ace holding. Name your highest ace, regardless of length of the suit. If you have no ace, bid three no trump."

Mr. Rau's partner responded with three spades, thus definitely showing the ace of spades. Mr. Rau then bid four spades. The naming of a second suit by the original bidder is asking for the king of that suit. Mr. Rau's partner, not having the king of

AUSTRALIANS IN HONGKONG.ASSOCIATION FORMED LAST NIGHT

Australian residents of Hongkong, at a large gathering at the Gloucester Building last night, decided to form an Association here.

To be called the Australian Association of Hongkong and South China, this body will have for its objects the promotion of Australian ideals and the fostering of a spirit of comradeship amongst men of the Commonwealth in Hongkong and South China.

Those eligible for membership include Australians and New Zealanders, and any person who, for a continuous period of five years, has resided in Australia. Full membership, however, will be limited to Australian born.

Subscription to the Association will be $10 per annum.

The following Committee was elected by last night's meeting:

Dr. H. D. Matthews, president; Mr. T. A. Mildren, vice-president; Mr. J. M. Kelleher, treasurer; Mr. N. Stockton, secretary, and Messrs. J. Hunter, A. W. Ingram, J. Way, H. Ching and Dr. Traill.

Among those present at the meeting were:

Mr. J. Way, Mr. C. de S. Robertson, Mr. A. W. Ingram, Mr. J. M. Kelleher, Mr. E. F. Sell, Mr. T. A. Ingram, Mr. D. Orr, Mr. L. E. Morgan, Mr. J. L. Kent, Mr. S. W. Coleman, Mr. R. A. Patterson, Dr. H. D. Matthews, Mr. C. E. Stuart, Mr. T. Mildren, Mr. Caleb Cheong, Mr. T. Mitchell, Dr. R. Traill, Mr. James Poon, Mr. M. B. Moffatt, Mr. H. C. Wilkinson, Mr. B. Cheong, Mr. I. McInnes, Mr. N. Stockton, Mr. J. Hunter, Mr. W. Ahern.

Apologies were received from Mr. H. Ching, Mr. H. R. Wells, Mr. Dudley and Mr. Li Choe-chee.

spades, should respond with the original suit.

However, partner was void of diamonds and held three hearts, therefore he could bid diamonds to inform partner that there was a possibility of getting into his hand. Mr. Rau now knew that there was a sure slam in hearts after the bid of three spades. He also knew that his partner did not hold the king of spades. However, the king of clubs would prove just as valuable now that he knew that he could get into partner's hand, therefore he bid six clubs realizing that if his partner did not have the king of clubs, he would simply bid six hearts.

As his partner held the king of clubs, he bid seven clubs and Mr.

THE MANAGEMENT TAKES GREAT PLEASURE IN PRESENTING

BERT WHEELER & ROBERT WOOLSEY

The World's Greatest Comedy Team in their latest and most hilarious film.

"HOLD 'EM JAIL"

A screamingly funny comedy that will keep you laughing from start to finish.

Just imagine them in jail in such company as ROSCOE ATES, EDGAR KENNEDY, EDNA MAY OLIVER. It's a riot! Positively the funniest film they have ever made.

An RKO Radio Super production.

Take our tip: Be sure to see it!

Note: Bert and Bob will personally attend to-morrow's 9.30 performance.

FALSE PRETENCES

UNFULFILLED PROMISE OF DRIVING LESSONS

Giving his name as Edward Charles Anderson, a Hongkong born resident was charged before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with obtaining $110 by false pretences from Lo Fung-sheung and Lo
Yeung-kwong on December 18, 1932.

It was alleged by Detective
Sergeant Lamont that defendant, representing himself to be in the employ of the Wallace Harper Motor-car Company, offered to teach the two complainants, who had just arrived from Canton, to drive a motor-car for $150.

The first man paid him $50 and the second $60, but after the money was handed over, defendant disappeared.

The police officer stated that defendant had promised to take out licences for the complainants and to help them to obtain jobs.

Nothing more was heard about the defendant until yesterday when he was seen by the first complainant coming off the Yau-manti Ferry. Defendant was taken to the Mongkok Police Station where he was charged.

A plea of guilty was entered and sentence of 10 weeks' hard labour was passed.

A fire occurred at Tsunghai shortly after 10 p.m. yesterday, on the first floor of the Man On Pawnshop, which stands on the main street.
Damage to the extent of about $1,000 was done.

POLICE OFFICER GETS HIS DOG

RELENTLESS CHASE AT SHAUKIWAN

A hunt for an unmuzzled dog, which was eventually shot when swimming round a boat in Shaukwan harbour, was related before
Mr. Schofield this morning by Sub-Inspector Logan.

The boatwoman, Ng Yan-fat, was charged with keeping a black chow dog without a licence, and also with allowing it to go abroad unmuzzled.

The woman denied ownership at first, but later admitted keeping it as a watch dog.

Sub-Inspector Logan said he saw the dog pass the Shaukwan police station. It was unmuzzled. He took a shot gun and went in pursuit. He was told it had gone in the direction of the harbour. He made a search for the dog in a sampan. He eventually saw it swimming alongside defendant's boat. She reached out and caught the dog by the neck, but on seeing witness let it drop into the water. The dog continued swimming round the boat, and was eventually turned away. He then shot it and it sank.

Mr. Schofield imposed fines of $4 on each charge.

DOG INJURED FOR LIFE BY POLICE

On a summons for allowing her brown and white terrier dog abroad without a muzzle, Mrs. S.
Boulton, of Taikee Dockyard, was cautioned by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

SILVER OUTLOOK

LOWER RATES ARE EXPECTED

After yesterday afternoon's fall, the dollar was again quoted at
1s. 4d. this morning, but the opinion in the market, which seems quite steady at the moment, is that lower rates will soon prevail.

Silver was down slightly in London yesterday, the market ruiling uncertain. America sold, but buyers appeared to be satisfied.

The rise of 2½ in New York is attributed largely to shorts covering.

The Magistrate—I understand your dog was unfortunately shot.
Mr. Boulton—Yes. The doctor says the dog is injured for life.

His Worship—I am very sorry about that.

OWNERS FINED.

Second-Lieut. J. Tyler, of the South Wales Borderers, answering a similar summons for an unmuzzled dog near the Peak Tram Upper Station, said the dog was not his actually. "I had the dog out for a walk. The lead was in my pocket".

A fine of $5 was imposed.

Mr. H. S. Foreyth, of the Asiatic Petroleum Co., Dr. Woo,
27, Babbington Path and Li Mau, of the Royal Hongkong Yacht
Club were also fined $5 each.

A Chinese woman pleaded that the dog's muzzle came off in the street.

His Worship—Yes. They all do that.

Another Chinese stated his dog chewed the leather muzzle. The Magistrate advised defendant to obtain a wire muzzle.
